County Ready for Blackout Test Thursday

ALERT SIGNALS TO BE SOUNDED IN ALL AREAS

Lights Go Out On First Blast, Remain Out Until Street Lights Go On

RULES TO BE ENFORCED

Hundreds Of Trained OCD Members To Be At Assigned Posts

Pickaway county's blackout plans are complete and when the first warning signal sounds Thursday evening it is expected that civilian co-operation will result in a fine demonstration for army and Ohio Civilian Defense officials who will be here as observers.

Wednesday, the County Council issued this instruction for the guidance of the general public:

When the first alert is sounded put out all lights and keep them out until the "all clear" signal. This probably will be for a period of 30 to 40 minutes.

The first signal heard by the public will be a sustained two minute note on whistles, bells or sirens, according to the community. All lights except traffic lights go out. Vehicular and pedestrian traffic may continue with caution. The next signal is a series of short blasts for a period of two minutes. All lights go out and all traffic halts. The next signal is the sustained note once more and traffic lights are turned on. All other lights remain out. Automobile and pedestrian traffic resumes. When the street lights are turned on normal lighting may be resumed, this being a signal that the test period is at an end.

Lights go out on the first audible signal and remain out until street lights are turned on.

Factories Face Test

Circleville factories will participate in the blackout for a period of five minutes only, resuming work at the end of that time. During the five minute period the plants will be inspected by visiting officials.

In addition to community police organized by the various Defense Councils Sheriff Radcliff will have 40 auxiliary police on duty and the highway patrol will have some 20 members of its local auxiliary unit on post.

The entire county will be alerted the same as it will be alerted in the event of an actual emergency. The series of warnings will be received here from Columbus and relayed to all communities in the county. Sheriff Radcliff, who is serving as the county's alerting officer, will make 60 calls outside of the city during the evening, five (Continued on Page Two)

GROWING JAP POWER CITED

MacArthur Sounds Further Warning Of Dangers In Southwest Pacific

UNITED NATIONS HEADQUARTERS IN AUSTRALIA, April 14—A further warning of Japan's increased striking power in the southwest Pacific was given today by Gen. Douglas MacArthur.

The allied commander-in-chief emphasized that the bulk of the Japanese fleet, the main force of which presently is outside of the range of allied bombers, still is intact.

He declared that the entire future of Australia depends on the ability of the allies to maintain their control of the air over the southwest Pacific which they wrested from the Japs last year.

Gen. MacArthur, in a statement to newsmen on the heels of a warning by Australian Gen. Sir Thomas Blamey that the Japs are massing 200,000 men north of the commonwealth, explained that Nippon has complete control of sea lanes in the western Pacific and on the outer approaches of Australia. He qualified this statement by saying that the activities of United Nations submarines combating this control was not to be discounted.

Air power, he continued, is of prime importance. "Control of such sea lanes," he said, "no longer depends solely or even perhaps primarily on naval power, but upon air power operating from land bases held by ground troops, all supported by naval power."

It was recalled that in announcing the American and Australian (Continued on Page Two)

Labor Secretary Declares Guaranteed Annual Wage Is Fair

NEW YORK, April 14—A final showdown in the soft coal wage controversy was anticipated today as representative of the United Mine Workers Union met again with northern and southern bituminous mine operators.

Dr. John R. Steelman, director of the U. S. conciliation service, whose compromise "guaranteed annual wage" formula for settling the dispute was accepted by the miners, but flatly rejected by the northern operators, was to attend the sessions.

Stelman was to urge the northern operators to reconsider their rejection of the compromise plan in view of Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins' wholehearted endorsement of the formula as being "fair, reasonable and in the public interest."

Perkins Aids Views

Miss Perkins telegraphed her views to the northern operators last night after they had termed Steelman's plan "wholly impractical."

Southern operators have taken no action on the "guaranteed annual wage" proposal, but it was indicated they too would flatly reject it.

Stelman's plan would guarantee the miners six days work a week the year round. The plan would add $2.25 a day to the miners earnings without changing the existing wage scales.

BOY CONFESSES PUSHING TWO OFF HIGH CLIFF

GOLDEN, Colo., April 14 — A formal murder charge was to be filed in Golden district court today to climax what authorities described as Colorado's most gruesome juvenile crime.

Deputy District Attorney Martin C. Molholm said William Eugene Wymer, 16, of Denver, would be charged with the deaths of Donald J. Mattas, eight, and Milo M. Flindt, 11, who lived at a trailer camp west of Denver.

Molholm said Wymer had confessed to Sheriff Howard Vincent that he pushed the little boys off the 175 foot cliff known as Castle Rock, overlooking Golden. The sheriff said Wymer's motive apparently was to hide the fact he had stolen the boys' shoes, socks and a cheap watch.

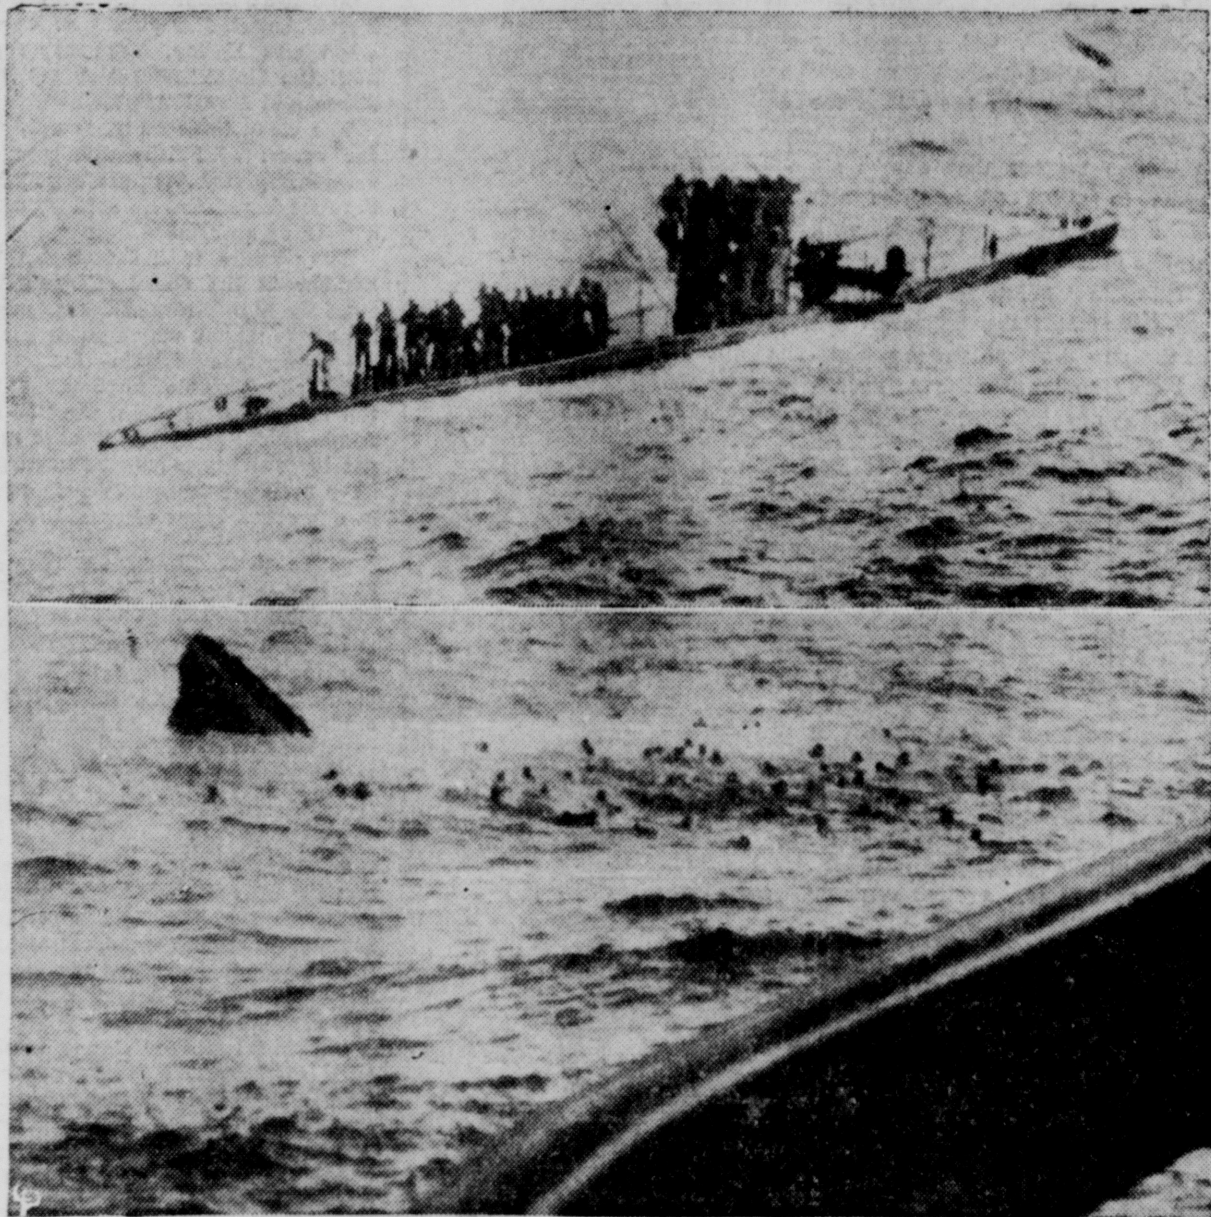

Sheriff Vincent said he first had believed the deaths of Donald and Milo had been accidental, when their bodies were discovered Sunday. Later, he said he questioned seven other small boys who said they had happened along shortly after the crime.

"The boys said they talked to Milo Flindt, who still was alive," Sheriff Vincent reported. "They said they were afraid to report the incident because they thought they would be blamed for it. Later, however, they told their parents about what they had seen."

Donald Mattas was the son of Mrs. Evelyn Mattas, a Denver ordinance plant worker who came from Los Angeles in June 1942. Milo Flindt was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Flindt. Flindt also works at the war plant.

The accused youth said he was born in Toledo, O. He said his mother and father were divorced and that his mother had remarried. She now lives in Denver. He said the only other time he had been in trouble was last year when he stole a car at Texline, Tex.

U. S. Proposes To Care For Persecuted Peoples Of European Nations

WASHINGTON, April 14—The American government today is planning to propose establishment of refugee camps in neutral European countries as well as in the Middle East to care for some of Europe's persecuted peoples.

A plan to this effect will be presented by the U. S. delegation to the Anglo-American refugee conference which convenes in Bermuda next Monday.

The American delegation intends to propose that the cost of maintaining the refugee camps be borne by the United Nations, augmented by funds from private sources.

If arrangements can be made for the establishment of these refugee camps, the German government may be approached through neutral diplomatic channels and asked to release a certain number of Jewish and other people who are being subjected to persecution because of racial, religious or political beliefs.

Similar overtures also would be made to some of the Axis satellite nations, such as Romania, Bulgaria and Hungary.

While the German attitude toward release of Jews and political refugees is considered uncertain, American organized Jewry claims that Romania, Bulgaria and Hungary are willing to release their Jews.

Some of the neutral countries in which it is thought refugee camps might be established include Turkey, Egypt, Portugal and possibly Spain.

Reports from Rome and Marseilles relayed from Zurich by the Reuter News Agency said the axis troops have been evacuating Tunisia for the last few nights under cover of darkness.

The unsubstantiated reports said that various contingents of axis troops have been arriving in the early hours of the morning at the ports of Cagliari, Sardinia, and Trapani and Marsala in western Sicily. They are being taken out of North Africa by both transport vessels and other craft, it was said, while German and Italian submarines stand guard a hundred yards or so off shore while the troops embark from Tunisia.

The main points of embarkation reportedly are the naval base of Bizerte and the smaller ports of Porto-Farina, El Aquina, La Marsa, and La Goulette near Tunis. British, French and American forces drove hard today against Axis armies trapped in a "coffin corner" of northeastern Tunisia, while allied air forces rained heavy new blows on enemy objectives over a wide area.

From the headquarters of Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, allied commander-in-chief in North Africa, came word that the British Eighth army had attacked the newly established axis line between Enfidaville on the eastern coast of Tunisia and hill positions to the west.

At the same time units of the British Eighth army pushed ahead between Medjez-El-Bah and Munchar on the road to the capital city of Tunis and French forces headed eastward to the sea from the Ousseltia valley region.

As unconfirmed reports reached London that Axis troops were already evacuating Tunisia under cover of darkness, allied planes hammered enemy airfields and a strong force of British bombers roared across the Alps to attack the Italian naval and submarine base of Spezia in northern Italy.

Walter Reed Hospital Reveals Miracles That Save Soldiers' Lives

WASHINGTON, April 14 — For the first time since Pearl Harbor blasted America into war, Walter Reed hospital today opened the gates of the miracles being worked by army doctors to save lives, limbs, minds and the dignity of man.

A younger, healthier fighter than his father before him, the soldier of World War II has a far better chance of returning from battle to take up life where total war flung it.

Plasma transfusions on the battlefield, sulfa drugs, shock-deadening barbiturates and swift transportation to the world's finest medical centers by airplane will save millions of lives that would have been lost in the last war, army medical school officers said today.

Specialists equipped with the most modern knowledge and tools can complete the cycle of returning a man's self-respect, usefulness and heart.

Miracle Operation
The slim young flying officer burned beyond recognition in North Africa will be "very personable" and ready to resume active duty in the next six months. The officer, army doctors pointed out, is no exception. He already has been given new eyelids, jaw, mouth, upper lip, forehead and cheeks. His flame-seared hands, once contracted by scars, will be straight-fingered and useable. Only faint "pencil lines" will reveal that the army gave him the new pair of hands.

The officer is completely cheerful about it. Without any reluctance he speaks of the wonders performed by plastic surgeons in giving him a new face and pair of hands. He will even be given eyelashes and eyebrows, plucked from his head and transplanted hair by hair with incredible dexterity.

Many Burned
Col. George R. Callender explained that burns are this war's prevailing new injury. Gasoline-fueled planes, trucks and ships make battle-scorched men and the army has moved swiftly to meet the challenge. As time is an important factor and immediate attention essential if the soldier is to be both useful and presentable once again Maxillo-facial kits are carried to front by teams of doctors and oral surgeons. Evacuated to Walter Reed, the patient then receives the most minute attention. Masks are made to determine the operations necessary and not only faces, but limbs and bodies are remade to useful mobility and normal appearance.

Shattered bones and bodies are carefully and thoroughly patched and regenerated by doctors to accept no defeat. A boy with a shrapnel-maimed leg walks easily in on crutches that can be discarded shortly. The scars will soon fade. Jaws and chins are built or (Continued on Page Two)

MARTINS GET POOR RATING AS PROPHETS
Weather prognosticators' predictions were tossed into the proverbial cocked hat Wednesday when another wind-driven snow storm hit the Circleville area.

A few days ago the martins returned to Circleville, and many persons thought the winter was over. Usually, the martins do not return to Circleville, or to any other Ohio town for that matter, until the snows have ended. These birds must have worn snow shoes, because snow has fallen twice since that date.

Under normal conditions Tuesday's snow should have been the last one anyway because it was the twenty-ninth of the year, and, since November 29, 1942, was the date of the first snow there should have been just 29 this year. Then came Wednesday and the thirtieth snow.

Another forecast concerning snows was also blasted when Wednesday's snow was the fourth "after the forsythia blooms."

There are only supposed to be three. Had the weather man followed the proper course of things, Tuesday's snow would have been the final one of the year. Wednesday's low temperature was 26, and the weather was miserable, predictions or no predictions.

From the headquarters of Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, allied commander-in-chief in North Africa, came word that the British Eighth army had attacked the newly established axis line between Enfidaville on the eastern coast of Tunisia and hill positions to the west.

At the same time units of the British Eighth army pushed ahead between Medjez-El-Bab and Munchar on the road to the capital city of Tunis and French forces headed eastward to the sea from the Ousseitia valley region.

As unconfirmed reports reached London that Axis troops were already evacuating Tunisia under cover of darkness, allied planes hammered enemy airfields and a strong force of British bombers roared across the Alps to attack the Italian naval and submarine base of Spezia in northern Italy.

RAF Hits Germany
Other RAF bombers blasted industrial objectives in northwest Germany, while heavy allied bombers of the middle east command attacked the Italian harbors of Palermo and Messina in Sicily.

most important naval base and site of a strategic airbase and munitions plants, was described by the British air ministry as heavy. Three British bombers were lost. Spezia last was raided February 14, when the RAF also bombed the industrial city of Milan.

In the aerial warfare over Tunisia, eight enemy planes were shot down, while only three Allied planes were lost.

An Algiers radio broadcast that the Eighth army had already captured Enfidaville, 27 miles north of the port of Sousse and only 50 miles from Tunis, lacked official confirmation.

Japs Bombed

Allied planes were active in the southwest Pacific, too. Boeing Flying Fortresses blasted three enemy merchant vessels off the northern coast of New Guinea, leaving a 10,000-ton ship in a sinking condition and damaging two others with direct hits. Other Allied bombers of Lieut. Gen. George C. Kenney's southwest Pacific air force carried out five raids on the Japanese north of Australia and strafed coastal vessels in nearby waters.

From Gen. Douglas MacArthur came the prediction that air power, in conjunction with ground forces, would win the war in the western Pacific. Said MacArthur:

"The Allied naval forces can be counted on to play their own magnificent part but the battle of the western Pacific will be won or lost by the proper application of the air ground team... the first line of Australia's defense is our bomber line."

In Washington navy men agreed that a big naval battle between American and Japanese fleets may be in the offing, for both fleets have been gathering strength for several months, during which there has been no major naval action.

While there were no major changes on the Russian battlefield, fierce small-scale fighting broke out on various sectors in which close to 1,000 Nazis were slain. In the Balakleya region southeast of Kharkov, where the Soviets clung tenaciously to their Donets river positions, more than 300 enemy troops were killed.

German attacks increased in the Leningrad region, but the Russians said all of them had been repulsed with heavy casualties for the Nazis. On the central front, three companies of Nazi infantry were wiped out by heavy artillery fire. Artillery duels also marked skirmishing in the region west of Rostov on the southern front.

Russian airmen destroyed five enemy planes in a raid on an enemy airbase in the Balakleya area.

TRIPLE THREAT!—That's New Army Dive Bomber

DIVE BOMBER, DE LUXE—The A-36 deals quick death as fighter, ground-strafer and bomber.

By ANDREW R. BOONE
Central Press Correspondent
INGLEWOOD, Cal.—Something decidedly and destructively new has been added to the Allied air forces' striking power:

A dive bomber that climbs six miles in about 12 minutes and dives 450 miles an hour with brakes extended.

It is the A-36, newest version of the famed Mustang fighter. Word of the new development is permitted only now, with the Army approving announcement by J. H. Kindelberger, president of North American Aviation, Inc., of the plane's sensational performance.

Secret of the dive-bombing characteristics of the A-36 is a combination of hydraulically-operated brakes. Unlike other versions, one is located above and one below each wing. Opened, these give the wing sections a feathered appearance.

Bomb racks are also located in the wings, from which either bombs or droppable fuel tanks may be suspended.

Appearance of the A-36 gives Allied forces a triple-threat death-dealing fighter, ground-attacker and bomber.

Six Guns
Carrying six high-caliber machine guns, as a fighter this ship can maneuver rings around enemy interceptor and fighter planes at all altitudes.

Two .50 caliber synchronized guns fire through the three-bladed propeller, while four .50 caliber pour their streams of armor-piercing and explosive bullets out from wing positions.

Also as a fighter, the A-36, powered with a 12-cylinder Allison engine, flies faster than 400 miles an hour. When the pilot opens the brakes, he can nose down toward an enemy target at 450 miles an hour. On releasing his bombs, he closes the brakes, and once more is flying a fighter.

Great things are expected along the fighting fronts from this plane, for it was sired by another which already has won acclaim for sensational exploits.

The Mustang, whose lines it bears, will, if the recent words of a war department spokesman are borne out, be the world's outstanding ing fighter plane of 1943.

The P-51 Mustang, produced in North America's plants at Inglewood and Dallas, Tex., serve in both the United States Army Air Force and Royal Air Force.

The clean lines of those fighters are preserved in the dive-bomber version, giving it performance thought impossible to achieve only a year or so ago.

They make it the fastest dive bomber in the world. Yes, faster than the highly touted German and Japanese planes which made early Axis successes possible.

Of considerable importance to the men who fly them, the line of A-36s is designed to hit hard and get back safely. Already Mustangs have been pre-eminently successful in numerous types of operations in Europe.

They have supported landing parties at Dieppe, destroyed Focke-Wulf 190s in combat and performed vital tasks of visual reconnaissance. Flown by British pilots, they were the first single-engine planes based in England to penetrate Germany, attacking Dortmund last October.

Besting the Luftwaffe

American air officers observed the Mustang with great interest as they proved their value in combat with the best fighters of the Luftwaffe, and as low-level attack planes which destroyed targets in the low countries, France and Germany.

Convinced these planes could, with modifications, serve another important purpose, the Army several months ago asked North American to build a combination fighter-dive bomber. But those modifications must not embody any essential changes in the Mustang.

Kindelberger called his engineers together last June. Five months later, following 40,000 engineering hours of day and night work, the first A-36 flew. So well had the designers done their job, the dive bomber weighs only about 200 pounds more than the Mustang!

Pilots may be assured they can hit harder with the A-36, and get back safely, for the ship carries protective armor plate.

Yes, they may, with comparative peace of mind, strike hard at the enemy and streak home at a speed never yet approached by a plane whose primary mission is to bomb.

In a small screened room a boy lies quietly on a bed. To four different sections of his head small wires are attached with adhesive. The boy has lost an eye and the surgeons are hunting for possible brain injuries. As he opens his eyes, closes them, thinks and moves his reactions are recorded on a graph.

If there are any injuries they will show on the graph. Looking like a glorified radio set and named the electro-encephalograph, the machine has saved a host of lives in World War II.

No longer need any man die because x-ray treatment or examination is unavailable on the battlefield. Portable x-ray machines can now be rushed to the front lines. One machine locates bullets or shrapnel in the body within a matter of one minute.

Many Mental Cases

Nearly one-third of the casualties now coming back from the war zones are mental or nervous breakdowns, neuro-psychiatric doctors disclosed. At Walter Reed the soldiers are given careful care and nursed gently back to mental health.

"The majority," Lt. Col. Percy G. Hamlin pointed out "are not mental cases but constitutional psychopaths who were perfectly all right in their own narrow groove in civil life, but whose nervous mechanism broke down under military experience, discipline and drastic demand for readjustment."

In another section of the huge hospital a cheerful, noisy lot of boys are playing with strange "toys", going through odd exercises. One is concentrating on putting his fingers one after the other in holes in the wall. He is learning to use his hands again. A to the Rome and Marseilles accounts.

From Stockholm the Daily Telegraph quoted Berlin reports to the effect that Air Marshal Sperle, commander of the German western air fleet in France, had been transferred to Sicily. This move reportedly was undertaken to reinforce Nazi Air Marshal Albert Kesselring whose plane losses in Tunisia since the Mareth line was crushed have been severe.

The crack squadrons of the western air fleet supposedly are being replaced by an air fleet withdrawn from northern Tunisia.

If this report is true, it was pointed out, it means that Reichsmarshal Herman Goering is concentrating between 2,000 and 3,000 first line planes in Italy.

ed that the six-day proposal would "not add a penny to the cost of coal."

"The price of coal has already been adjusted to carry this labor cost," Miss Perkins said, "and it is of doubtful wisdom to continue that burden unless it is actually reflected in the weekly earnings of miners in the regularity of operations and in increased production of coal."

The labor secretary referred to the 9 percent increase in the price of coal granted the operators to cover overtime cost for the sixth day of operation.

Charles O'Neill, spokesman for the northern operators in turning down the annual guarantee asked that the National War Labor Board intervene and decide the controversy.

"No industry can guarantee an annual earning," O'Neill said, "and I know of no other industry that has been asked to do so."

O'Neill said the number of weeks a mine operates depends on the demand for coal, ability of transportation companies to service the mines, the accident of breakdowns, absenteeism and many other factors.

He said the soft coal mines now operate on a six day week, with time and a half for the sixth day.

John L. Lewis, in accepting the guaranteed annual wage proposal said it would give the miners 313 work days a year or 79 more work days than in 1942. He revealed that after the operators had turned down the Steelman proposal they also had rejected a union alternative offer to grant the miners a flat $2.25 a day increase without the annual guarantee proposal.

"We are now at the unhappy point of not having received an offer from the operators on any point in the negotiations and of having them reject two proposals based upon the governments formula," Lewis said.

O'Neill declared that the operators were prepared to go before the War Labor Board immediately on the grounds that the present negotiations were in a stalemate. The operators, O'Neill said will ask the Labor Board to order the existing agreement continued.

Meanwhile the hard coal conferences between Pennsylvania operators and the mine union continued at the Waldorf-Astoria. Little information was obtained on the progress of the anthracite conferences, but it was believed they were covering the preliminary problems in a satisfactory atmosphere.

LOCAL STORES MAY CLOSE HALF DAY EACH WEEK

That Circleville retail stores may close their doors at noon each Wednesday throughout the year was indicated by Elmer Stebelton, chairman of the Chamber of Commerce retail merchants' committee, following a meeting of merchants Tuesday night in Chamber of Commerce rooms.

Stebelton said that stores will start May 5 to close at noon on Wednesday, and will continue the policy for an indefinite time. Usually the closing program starts in June.

The committee chairman pointed out that every retail store in Circleville had been contacted and that 62 percent of the operators favor closing Wednesday at noon throughout the year instead of during the Summer months.

Victory over the Japanese army at Buna Gen. MacArthur attributed the success of the campaign to coordinated air action.

"The range of our air force over surrounding waters marks the stretch of no man's sea, which is the measure of our safety. If we lose the air, naval forces cannot save us."

"Conversely, if the enemy wins control of the air, his naval units can at once bring forward convoys of ground forces to continue his attack to the southward to a limit imposed only the effective range of his land-based air support."

"A primary threat to Australia does not therefore require a great initial local concentration of naval striking power. It requires, rather, a sufficient concentration of land-based aviation. As a matter of fact, Japanese naval forces in great strength, although now beyond our bomber range, was within easy striking distance of Australia."

"The vital factors, therefore, in the southwest Pacific with its littoral of countless island groups and innumerable archipelagic reaches are the air forces to strike and the ground forces to conquer and hold. The allied naval forces can be counted upon to play their own magnificent part, but the battle of the western Pacific will be won or lost by the proper application of the air-ground team."

Do Not Use Phones

All citizens are urged to refrain from use of telephones during the blackout period as the local exchanges will be carrying a full load of defense calls. OGD telephone calls have priority over any and all phone calls except those of the United States army.

Since the county will be extremely black during the test period Civilian Defense officials are urging that all citizens refrain from travel during the test period as travel will be hazardous.

The beginning of the test will be sometime between 7:30 and 9:30 Thursday evening.

Participation in the blackout test is mandatory, there being no exceptions.

Several hundred trained Defense Council members will be on active duty in all parts of the county during the test and all roads will be patrolled.

TRUCK DRIVERS WIN PRAISE OF RATION BOARD

Pickaway county truck operators who have received gasoline ration renewals for the next quarter received a pat on the back Wednesday from local rationing officials for cooperating with the regulation which calls for truckers to surrender unused stamps at the end of the quarter.

The local office disclosed Wednesday that, contrary to the practice reported prevailing in some of the other 17 counties in the central Ohio area, most Pickaway county truckers have been turning in their excess coupons when they apply for new ration cards.

Columbus district of the Office of Defense Transportation said Wednesday that some excess mileage ration coupons are going into "black market" channels. Examiners are continuing to check up on first quarter reports.

A. F. Dankert, district ODT manager, said that about 20 percent of the 18,000 war necessity certificates issued to truck operators in the 17-county area provided more mileage ration coupons than were necessary. He said that scores of truckers are not complying with the ruling which says excess stamps must be turned in.

The pastor requested aid because of illness which has weakened him so much that the press of the pre-Easter season is too much for him.

The Rev. Mr. Winterhoff will preach Tuesday and Thursday evenings and Friday afternoon next week. Another substitute will be obtained to preach at Good Friday night services and at Easter rites.

The Rev. Mr. Troutman expects to occupy the pulpit at Palm Sunday morning rites.

ed that the six-day proposal would "not add a penny to the cost of coal."

"The price of coal has already been adjusted to carry this labor cost," Miss Perkins said, "and it is of doubtful wisdom to continue that burden unless it is actually reflected in the weekly earnings of miners, in the regularity of operations and in increased production of coal."

The labor secretary referred to the 9 percent increase in the price of coal granted the operators to cover overtime cost for the sixth day of operation.

Charles O'Neill, spokesman for the northern operators in turning down the annual guarantee asked that the National War Labor Board intervene and decide the controversy.

"No industry can guarantee an annual earning," O'Neill said, "and I know of no other industry that has been asked to do so."

O'Neill said the number of weeks a mine operates depends on the demand for coal, ability of transportation companies to service the mines, the accident of breakdowns, absenteeism and many other factors.

He said the soft coal mines now operate on a six day week, with time and a half for the sixth day.

John L. Lewis, in accepting the guaranteed annual wage proposal said it would give the miners 313 work days a year or 79 more work days than in 1942. He revealed that after the operators had turned down the Steelman proposal they also had rejected a union alternative offer to grant the miners a flat $2.25 a day increase without the annual guarantee proposal.

"We are now at the unhappy point of not having received an offer from the operators on any point in the negotiations and of having them reject two proposals based upon the governments formula," Lewis said.

O'Neill declared that the operators were prepared to go before the War Labor Board immediately on the grounds that the present negotiations were in a stalemate. The operators, O'Neill said will ask the Labor Board to order the existing agreement continued.

Meanwhile the hard coal conferences between Pennsylvania operators and the mine union continued at the Waldorf-Astoria. Little information was obtained on the progress of the anthracite conferences, but it was believed they were covering the preliminary problems in a satisfactory atmosphere.

LOCAL STORES MAY CLOSE HALF DAY EACH WEEK

That Circleville retail stores may close their doors at noon each Wednesday throughout the year was indicated by Elmer Stebelton, chairman of the Chamber of Commerce retail merchants' committee, following a meeting of merchants Tuesday night in Chamber of Commerce rooms.

Stebelton said that stores will start May 5 to close at noon on Wednesday, and will continue the policy for an indefinite time. Usually the closing program starts in June.

The committee chairman pointed out that every retail store in Circleville had been contacted and that 62 percent of the operators favor closing Wednesday at noon throughout the year instead of during the summer months.

victory over the Japanese army at Buna Gen. MacArthur attributed the success of the campaign to coordinated air action.

"The range of our air force over surrounding waters marks the stretch of no man's sea, which is the measure of our safety. If we lose the air, naval forces cannot save us."

"Conversely, if the enemy wins control of the air, his naval units can at once bring forward convoys of ground forces to continue his attack to the southward to a limit imposed only the effective range of his land-based air support."

"A primary threat to Australia does not therefore require a great initial local concentration of naval striking power. It requires, rather, a sufficient concentration of land-based aviation. As a matter of fact, Japanese naval forces in great strength, although now beyond our bomber range, was within easy striking distance of Australia."

"The vital factors, therefore, in the southwest Pacific with its littoral of countless island groups and innumerable archipelago reaches are the air forces to strike and hold. The allied naval forces can be counted upon to play their own magnificent part, but the battle of the western Pacific will be won or lost by the proper application of the air-ground team."

TRUCK DRIVERS WIN PRAISE OF RATION BOARD

Pickaway county truck operators who have received gasoline ration renewals for the next quarter received a pat on the back Wednesday from local rationing officials for cooperating with the regulation which calls for truckers to surrender unused stamps at the end of the quarter.

The local office disclosed Wednesday that, contrary to the practice reported prevailing in some of the other 17 counties in the central Ohio area, most Pickaway county truckers have been turning in their excess coupons when they apply for new rationals.

Columbus district of the Office of Defense Transportation said Wednesday that some excess mileage ration coupons are going into "black market" channels. Examiners are continuing to check up on first quarter reports.

A. F. Dankert, district ODT manager, said that about 20 percent of the 18,000 war necessity certificates issued to truck operators in the 17-county area provided more mileage ration coupons than were necessary. He said that scores of truckers are not complying with the ruling which says excess stamps must be turned in.

Local Postmaster Stanley Smith, being the champion War Bond salesman for the county last month, it may be of interest to many to know the amount of sales in dollars and cents he made during the period along with stamp sales for the year 1942. War bond sales for March, month just past, $1162.50. Stamp sales for same month, $642.30. Stamp sales for the entire year of 1942 were $5414. And for the first three months of 1943, $1993. War bond sales for ten months beginning March 1, 1942, and ending with December, same year, amounted to $9,543.75. And for the three months, January, February and March, 1943, sales amounted to $4,293.75. This is a good showing in sales and purchases for both the Postmaster and the community citizenry.

He was an occasional visitor here in Ashville, since last September and well known to several Ashville people. His younger brother, father and mother were taken to the hospital after his death either because of having the disease or for special observation, so it was necessary for Mrs. Higley to look after the grandmother, who lived with the Marquis family. She reports that the father and mother have returned to their home and that the younger brother will be out of the hospital some time this week.

This particular field, he writes, is one of the best equipped camps in the U.S.A., and is named for Captain Ellington who distinguished himself in the air force in World War I.

The field is located near Houston, Texas, a city which he says compares favorably, in size and grandeur to our own capital city Columbus. Is surrounded by producing oil fields, has a climate which permits home-grown strawberries in February and roses all the year round.

Is there a squander bug in your pocketbook? Put Bonds at the top of your budget, and starve him out.

Amazing results in building STURDY BODIES!

1—Promote the flow of vital digestive juices in the stomach

2—Energize your body with RICH, RED BLOOD!

YOUNG people, especially those of grammar and high school age, are prone to be deficient in stomach digestive juices and red-blood.

A growing person who is operating on a 65 to 70% healthy blood volume or a stomach digestive capacity of only 50 to 60% normal is severely handicapped.

In such cases Nature needs extra help. Organic troubles or focal infection, if they exist, must be corrected. Tissue foods must be digested and rich, red-blood must be present to build sturdy bodies. S.S.S. Tonic is especially designed to build-up blood strength when deficient . . . and to promote those stomach juices which digest the food so the body can make proper use of it in tissue building and repair.

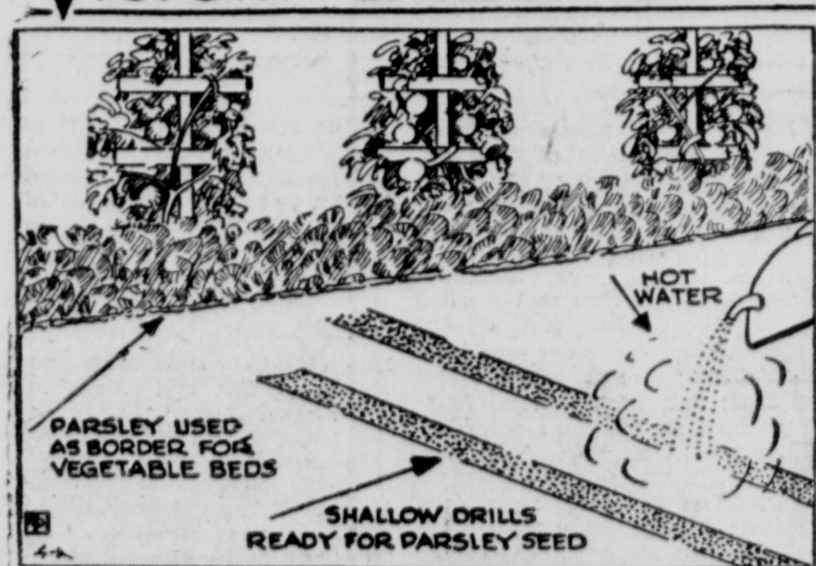

These two important results enable the body to make use of the food as Nature intended. Thus you may gain a keen appetite . . . firm flesh . . . body energy . . . mental alertness!

Today's VICTORY GARDEN-GRAPH

Growing Health in the Victory Garden

By DEAN HALLIDAY
Released by Central Press Association

THERE ARE many ways of growing health in the Victory garden but one of the ways which is not to be overlooked is to grow parsley.

Parsley, formerly considered useful only as a herb for flavoring or garnishing certain foods has now been brought to the foreground by the search for foods richest in vitamin A. Parsley is now considered one of the three best sources of vitamin A, since one ounce of it supplies many units of A, as well as vitamin C. Parsley's iron content is also very high and it is also rich in copper and manganese.

Parsley seeds are slow to germinate, taking from four to six weeks, therefore it is best just before sowing parsley seeds to pour boiling water in the shallow drills, as illustrated in the accompanying Garden-Graph. Parsley seeds should also be soaked for 24 hours before planting time in tepid water. These steps before planting will cut the germinating time almost in half.

Parsley is attractive as a growing plant and it therefore can be used as a border in the Victory vegetable garden as illustrated. The moss curled variety of parsley or the extra triple curled are perhaps the most decorative since both varieties have tightly curled leaves.

Local Postmaster Stanley Smith, being the champion War Bond salesman for the county last month, it may be of interest to many to know the amount of sales in dollars and cents he made during the period along with stamp sales for the year 1942. War bond sales for March, month just past, $1162.50. Stamp sales for same month, $642.30. Stamp sales for the entire year of 1942 were $5414. And for the first three months of 1943, $1993. War bond sales for ten months beginning March 1, 1942, and ending with December, same year, amounted to $9,543.75. And for the three months, January, February and March, 1943, sales amounted to $4,293.75. This is a good showing in sales and purchases for both the Postmaster and the community citizenry.

Ernestine Pobst left here yesterday afternoon by bus, her destination being Fort Oglethorpe, Georgia, where she will take basic training as a WAAC member. Louise Carley, another local lady, has already passed through the basic training period and is somewhere doing service.

Our Julius Kaiserman, graduate of the local high school and O.S.U., has been promoted to the rank of captain at the Jeffersonville Quartermaster Depot, Jeffersonville, Indiana. His wife and son reside at Cleveland. His parents, Jesse and Mrs. Kaiserman, here.

Up to 5 o'clock yesterday, had three snows in the day and this brings the number of 29 up to just about the right spot for the season. "It's coming out just right," the sure thing weather secretary-recorded said, when the snow boss was sending down his white stuff. This Wednesday morning, the 14th, the thermometer "down on the corner" registers 26 above the zero mark. "Pappy" Fischer is spending another week up at Magnetic Springs, taking G. A. Hook along with him for company.

Mrs. C. A. Higley arrived home in Ashville last Saturday p. m. after spending two and a half weeks in Ardsley, New York where she went to attend the funeral of Teddy Marquis, who died of spinal meningitis. Teddy was a student at Ohio State university for the last two quarters and had gone home for the Spring vacation. He was an occasional visitor here in Ashville, since last September and well known to several Ashville people. His younger brother, father and mother were taken to the hospital after his death either because of having the disease or for special observation, so it was necessary for Mrs. Higley to look after the grandmother, who lived with the Marquis family. She reports that the father and mother have returned to their home and that the younger brother will be out of the hospital some time this week.

Private Carl Norris is enjoying a 15-day furlough at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Norris of Walnut township. Carl is a former employee of the Eshelman mill and is stationed at Municipal Airport, Greenville, South Carolina.

almost a year now, and with the exception of a few weeks spent in basic training at Keesler Field, Miss., has been stationed at Ellington field, Texas.

This particular field, he writes, is one of the best equipped camps in the U.S.A., and is named for Captain Ellington who distinguished himself in the air force in World War I.

The field is located near Houston, Texas, a city which he says compares favorably, in size and grandeur to our own capital city Columbus. Is inland 50 miles from Galveston, and has water communication to the Gulf of Mexico and the Atlantic. Is surrounded by producing oil fields, has a climate which permits home-grown strawberries in February and roses all the year round.

Is there a squander bug in your pocketbook? Put Bonds at the top of your budget, and starve him out.

Amazing results in building STURDY BODIES!

1—Promote the flow of vital digestive juices in the stomach

2—Energize your body with RICH, RED BLOOD!

YOUNG people, especially those of grammar and high school age, are prone to be deficient in stomach digestive juices and red-blood.

A growing person who is operating on a 65 to 70% healthy blood volume or a stomach digestive capacity of only 50 to 60% normal is severely handicapped. In such cases Nature needs extra help. Organic troubles or focal infection, if they exist, must be corrected. Tissue foods must be digested and rich, red-blood must be present to build sturdy bodies.

SSS Tonic is especially designed to build-up blood strength when deficient . . . and to promote those stomach juices which digest the food so the body can make proper use of it in tissue building and repair.

These two important results enable the body to make use of the food as Nature intended. Thus you may gain a keen appetite . . . firm flesh . . . body energy . . . mental alertness!

Build Sturdy Health so that the Doctors may better serve our Fighting Forces

Thousands and thousands of users have testified to the benefits SSS Tonic has brought to them and scientific research shows that it gets results—that's why so many say "SSS Tonic builds sturdy health—makes you feel like yourself again." At drug stores in 10 and 20 oz. sizes. (S.S.S. Co.)

THE SUPERMAN
A CITY newspaper man who signed up to do farm work for a week has discovered that a farmer must be a jack of all trades, and pretty good at all of them. He has to be a mechanic, an inventor, a veterinarian, an agriculturist, a weather expert, a carpenter, an ironworker, a mason, a plumber, a business man, and various other types. But most of all, he must be a philosopher. Without a philosophic temperament, to stand the blows and buffets of outrageous fortune, he would bust up in no time.

He says the city man may fancy that a farmer has security, and yet the weather and insects make it an endless insecurity. He can hardly ever depend on doing any particular thing on a certain day. And unless he is highly mechanized and modernized, his life is an endless slavery to the animals as well as the soil.

Yet farmers brag about their "independence." And there's something to that, in spite of apparent contradictions. Working for anybody else, the farmer would be ordered around. As matters stand, he can order around at least the hired man and the animals.

There is immense satisfaction, too, in gazing at a fine field of growing grain, or a new stack of hay, or a granary filled with corn or oats, or a cellar full of potatoes and carrots and apples. And he can pity the "city slicker" or the slicker's wife, buying produce at ruinous prices.

JUNKETEERING
AS FOR statesmen, maybe they also serve who gallivant around. But Majority Leader Barkley thinks there is too much junketing and traveling by members supposed to be on the job at Washington. "It has got to be a habit," he says, "that senators are in on one mission or another all over the United States, if not all over the world. They are everywhere except in the Senate where they are chosen to serve."

It does seem a little that way, and it must be hard to keep the complex legislative machinery operating, with so many members functioning as observers and investigators in so many different fields, around the country and abroad. Do they really have to go everywhere and see everything for themselves, at public expense, instead of staying on the job and reading the papers and voting when their names are called?

Now we are going to "abolish absenteeism," or in plain English are we going to get back on the job?

China, with its vast, hungry population, could live well on what Americans throw away.

Sure, we Americans have a genius for government. It takes genius to make our system work.

Bullitt May Have Strong Philadelphia Aristocrat Voice in Post-War Plans Popular Internationally

By CHARLES P. STEWART
Central Press Columnist

WILLIAM C. BULLITT took a prominent part in the recent international pan-democratic conference, held in New York, to discuss ultimate world peace terms and how to make them effective after a program has been adopted.

Bill Bullitt is congenitally prominent. He is smart, for one thing. He arrived on the mundane scene as a member of "one of the first families" of Philadelphia, a very tony place for a hereditary aristocrat to be born into. He also was born into lots of money, without which aristocracy is not worth much.

Additionally Bullitt has a prominent temperament.

Bullitt had as much to say about that ill-fated Ford peace expedition back in World War I as Henry did, though Bill was only a comparative kid then. Bill crossed Germany on his way back to the United States and he took it upon himself to impress the Kaiser's officialdom in transit. Believe me, he impressed them! Unquestionably the chap is valuable at keeping folk snubbed over the nose—if that is what they need.

Back in the United States, as soon as World War I was ended, Bullitt was identified with peace negotiations, young as he was. Next he had

HEROES OF LINCOLN BRIGADE

WASHINGTON — Today in the State Department many of the reactionaries will admit they made a tragic mistake in boycotting the Spanish Loyalist government during the Spanish civil war.

Had the career boys not thrown the United States on the side of Franco — and indirectly on the side of Mussolini and Hitler who were supplying Franco with arms — the American army in North Africa today would not have to keep troops marking time on the borders of Spanish Morocco, worried over a Fascist thrust from Spain.

Even more important, many diplomats now believe that had the dictators been crushed in their practice war in Spain; had the United States shown it meant to throw its weight firmly behind democracies, the present war might never have happened.

Believing this even at that time — in 1936 and 1937 — several hundred American youngsters went to Spain, enlisted in the famous Abraham Lincoln Brigade, fought for the freely elected Spanish Republican Government against Franco. Many of them were wounded. Many were killed, among them the son of Ring Lardner, famous American humorist. Those who came back, possessed a first hand knowledge of modern warfare—warfare which many West Point graduates who run the U. S. Army had not then tasted.

ONE WHO CAUGHT ON

In Germany, Hitler used the Spanish civil war to test out planes, tanks and men.

But in the United States, most of the men who risked their lives to fight in the Lincoln Brigade against the dictators have experienced a peculiar fate. When they enlisted in the American army, they say they were discriminated against, cross-questioned as if they were social outcasts, and many of them thrown into service battalions, which means kitchen police, cleaning stables, and doing manual labor for the duration.

Those few Spanish War veterans who have been given a chance, have used their previous fighting experience to great advantage. Captain Hermann Battcher, called the Sergeant York of the Pacific, rose from sergeant to captain, has been awarded the Distinguished Service Cross and the Purple Heart with Clusters.

However, Battcher is not an American citizen. All who volunteered to fight in Spain lost their citizenship at the instigation of the Career Boys in the State Department. Furthermore, Battcher got into the war early, before the War Department clapped down a thinly veiled discrimination against veterans of the Lincoln Brigade.

FROM LT. COLONEL TO PRIVATE

For instance, here is the experience of several youngsters who fought against Fascism in Spain and who wanted to fight against it in the American Army.

Approximately one year ago, John Gates, a lieutenant colonel of the 15th International Brigade in Spain, enlisted in the U. S. Army. In Spain Vincent Sheean and Herbert Matthews of the New York Times cabled back dispatches on his bravery. In the U. S. Army he joined the 59th Armored Artillery Battalion, Camp Chafee, Ark., where he became a sergeant. Then as his unit was about to go overseas, his commander received a telegram from the Adjutant General in Washington or-

Treatment Depends on Finding Exciting Causes of Insomnia

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

LAST WEEK I gave some instances to illustrate the fact that all human beings need sleep and that it is so necessary to them that they get it even under the conditions of bodily pain and exhaustion.

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

tion. As I look over the modern theories about exciting causes and treatment of wakefulness, I do not feel that medical science has made a great deal of improvement in this field. In fact, I am not sure but what we have gone backward.

We have now a number of swiftly acting and harmless hypnotics which are almost certain to induce sleep. But they are so convenient that the tendency to use them prevents both doctors and patients from using older and more permanently reliable methods of curing insomnia.

The quiet old doctor who will sit down and patiently try to find out the cause of wakefulness will do more good than the administration of any of the barbiturates, which induce an unnatural sleep and result in no sense of restfulness on awakening.

Exciting Causes
The exciting causes of wakefulness are: First, long-continued or excessive intellectual activity, or any powerful emotion of the mind. Second, positions of the body which tend to result in unnatural circulation. This is a far more profound observation than it may seem to be. In some types of mental disturbance the patient's mind is absorbed in the contemplation of frightful illusions. Under these circumstances he is afraid to close his eyes in sleep and ignores all disposition to slumber. He obstinately refuses to go to bed and place himself in a recumbent position. He insists on remaining in the chair or standing in an erect position all night.

Obviously this, while an extreme example, gives us a clue to the benefits of posture in inducing sleep. If there is no exciting cause operating to cause wakefulness, I thoroughly believe anyone who assumes a comfortable, recumbent position in a dark room and relaxes his muscles will sooner or later get to sleep whether he is thinking about wakefulness or not.

Third, the ingestion of food or exciting drugs of any kind before various diplomatic missions abroad, and presently he turned up as America's ambassador in Russia. That especially adapts him to today's situation. Bullitt stands in solid with the Soviet government, and, all around, he is a coking good internationalist. Naturally, Bullitt was wished into the United Nations' current service. Bullitt knows his business and he is "persona grata," not only with the democracies' governments, but, as far as this is possible, with the Axis outfits, too.

It goes almost without saying that Bullitt is for a Russo-Anglo-American combination—including the Latin-American republics and the little European nations. He does not fall to mention China, either—an omission that Winston Churchill unluckily made in his celebrated broadcast dealing with post-war relationships.

Bill hints at possibly including the Axis peoples, too. What will happen to them?

Well, says Bill, the United States certainly will not insure or guarantee their slavery. This is almost an offer of liberty to them.

Not all, but perhaps quite a contingent of Germans consider themselves enslaved by the Nazi regime. The Italians, it is a certainty, predominantly think so, too. The Spanish are kept scared. The French are probably more than 50 per cent democratic. If they can get away with it, as we are. All that is a foregone conclusion.

Though a one-time resident in Japan, I do not know what the Japs would do, if given an opportunity, because they are so queer—1,000 times as much so as the Chinese. I do know that the rank-and-file of them disapprove of their government, but it is so much a habit with them that it is impossible to tell how they would react to a promise of freedom. It MIGHT "take."

But as for the United States? Unless Uncle Sam collaborates with the rest of the democracies (according to Bill Bullitt)—American isolationism is due to follow in short order—or, as soon as this war is ended.

Bill does not want isolationism. What he wants is permanent PEACE.

That is what Bill Bullitt is shooting at.

The BLIND MAN'S SECRET

CHAPTER TWENTY-THREE
WHEN THE truck hit the first down-grade curve at reckless speed Agatha clutched out wildly at Clementine. They both slid off the bench and onto the floor of their careening prison.

The girl helped the elder woman to her knees. "Are you hurt?" "No. It's lucky they took the milk cans out of this thing!" "He's trying to get to the end of this main road before anyone sees him."

"Do you call this a main road?" "Of course it's a main road—for the mountains."

"Do be careful of your hat! It looks like it's going to fall off." Clementine straightened the precious headgear. "Thank goodness they didn't throw a sack over my head, or I wouldn't be wearing this now."

"At this speed you may fall against something and break it. Wherever he's taking us, it looks like we'll never get there alive!" She grabbed the bench as they lurched around another curve.

Clementine stood up, held onto the heavy screen in the front of the panel body and peered out the little opening beside the drive. "The sun is high enough above the horizon by now to shine on top the mountain to the south of us," she reported. "I think we're on the Coon Creek road."

The driver overheard her. "Sit down, lady! You'll get hurt." "Yes, do!" Agatha urged. The sight of that bobbing hat kept her nerves on edge.

"I feel more secure here, where I can hang onto something," Clementine told them, raising her voice above a sudden grind of gears. The driver had thrown the machine into low as they descended a steep grade among the redwoods.

The road narrowed. Past Clementine's head Agatha caught glimpses of a steep bank to the left, where the trees overhung. She imagined the sharp drop off to the right, with spires of redwoods rising up out of the thick foliage of the canyon slope. She and Otto Halder—a different Otto Halder in those days—had once traveled this road to a picnic. Clementine's mention of Coon Creek brought back those memories in a torturing rush.

Agatha stood up and clutched the screen beside Clementine. Yes, she was right. It was the old, familiar country. The early morning sun had not yet penetrated down here. Dew stood on the leaves of the thimble berries. Wisps of fog clung to the deeper places of the wood.

They met no other vehicle. It seemed impossible two cars could have passed if they did meet. Agatha held her breath at each curve, because the driver did not use his horn.

The grade flattened as they neared the canyon bottom. The truck slowed, then with a squeal of brakes and a sickening sideways slide in the deep dust, came to a halt beside a ruined barn.

"You're late," said a nasal voice from some source Agatha could not see through the narrow window. "Never mind that!" replied their driver irritably. "Help me tie up these dames and get them into that jallopy of yours. I want you to take this milk truck down the line and wreck it. It's hot!"

"I told you that trick of changing cars wouldn't work." The truck body recoiled as the driver leaped down into the swirling dust. "These dames oughta be gagged. Suppose they holler at someone 'goin' by?"

"No one will hear 'em in Dead Man's Gulch!" Agatha stepped back from the little window. The rust was choking. She heard sounds of men talking as they moved away from the truck. A bluejay called raucously. A chipmunk sent his short, sharp "cheep" through the morning air.

"What are they doing?" Clementine asked in a trembling voice. Agatha looked out again. The dust was settling. "They're getting ropes out of an old car. It looks like a wreck. Rusty fenders and no top."

"I don't like this! They're going to take us to some hideout where we'll never be found! I'm going to try the door." Clementine pushed against it—banged with her fists. "No use," Agatha told her. "I heard them lock it when they put us in."

"They're likely to search us." "You mustn't give them that radio tube!" "I don't intend to. And for goodness sake don't keep staring at my hat when they get us outside!" "It's likely to fall off."

"Maybe I'll get a chance to get rid of it before then—throw it into the brush or something, where we can find it later."

"Tush! Here come the men!" A key scraped in the lock of the door. Half the rear panel opened. The same dark, heavy-set fellow, with no attempt at disguise, stood scowling at them. "Okeh! One at a time, and make it snappy!"

Agatha stepped down, her heart pounding. The door shut and locked behind her. "This is kidnapping," she told their driver and his tall companion, who had masked his face with a bandana. "You could hang for this!"

"Cut it out, sister. We're in a hurry!" The taller man grabbed her hands from behind and brought them together at her back. The other tied her wrists with rope. They both hustled her, one by each arm, and hustled her into the ancient vehicle standing beside the barn. "Remember," the tall one warned her, "if you holler at any farmer going by, we'll shoot him!"

They hurried back to the truck for Clementine.

Agatha thought, "If only there were some way I could give a signal—something I could leave to show they're taking us up this side road!"

She thought about dropping a handkerchief, but there was no way of getting it into her hands. She had nothing but her feet.

That was it! A shoe! She stood up in the topside car. The men had left the door open. It was a simple matter to slip one shoe off by catching the heel with the toe of the other foot. A quick kick and the shoe went spinning out into the middle of the main road.

Clementine was protesting loudly. "I'll remember your faces to my dying day! You'll go to prison for this!"

"Lady," the tall man told her, "you'll never see my face—and you'll never see either of us again."

"What do you mean by that? You—you're not going to kill us?" She was pale and trembling. They almost had to lift and push her in beside Agatha.

"Okeh, Joe," directed the heavy-set man. "Take that truck some where in a hurry. I'll see you next month in—your know where."

"Right!" The tall fellow started toward the milk truck on a quick trot. Suddenly he stopped and reached down into the dust. He picked up something and tossed it back at his mate who had climbed into the driver's seat of the old car. "Here, you keep this, Pete!" It was Agatha's shoe.

THE SUPERMAN

A CITY newspaper man who signed up to do farm work for a week has discovered that a farmer must be a jack of all trades, and pretty good at all of them. He has to be a mechanic, an inventor, a veterinarian, an agriculturist, a weather expert, a carpenter, an ironworker, a mason, a plumber, a business man, and various other types. But most of all, he must be a philosopher. Without a philosophic temperament, to stand the blows and buffets of outrageous fortune, he would bust up in no time.

He says the city man may fancy that a farmer has security, and yet the weather and insects make it an endless insecurity. He can hardly ever depend on doing any particular thing on a certain day. And unless he is highly mechanized and modernized, his life is an endless slavery to the animals as well as the soil.

Yet farmers brag about their "independence." And there's something to that, in spite of apparent contradictions. Working for anybody else, the farmer would be ordered around. As matters stand, he can order around at least the hired man and the animals.

There is immense satisfaction, too, in gazing at a fine field of growing grain, or a new stack of hay, or a granary filled with corn or oats, or a cellar full of potatoes and carrots and apples. And he can pity the "city slicker" or the slicker's wife, buying produce at ruinous prices.

Third, the ingestion of food or exciting drugs of any kind before going to bed is certainly a cause of wakefulness in many cases. Any treatment of insomnia which aims to go to the root of the causes will take these factors into account. The quality of your sleep will depend very considerably on the quality of your activities during the several hours before going to bed. Not to engage in mental stimuli or physical exercise is a primary requisite.

There is considerable difference in people's idiosyncracies to such a thing as taking a bath before going to bed. A warm bath soothes some people and stimulates others. Also, some people can sleep on their backs and some cannot. But by a due consideration of personal differences, natural sleep can be restored to most people. A natural sleep is the only kind worth having.

The driver overheard her. "Sit down, lady! You'll get hurt." "Yes, do!" Agatha urged. The sight of that bobbing hat kept her nerves on edge.

"I feel more secure here, where I can hang onto something," Clemanline told them, raising her voice above the sullen grind of gears. The driver had thrown the machine into low as they descended a steep grade among the redwoods.

The road narrowed. Past Clemanline's head Agatha caught glimpses of a steep bank to the left, where the trees overhung. She imagined the sharp drop off to the right, with spires of redwoods rising up out of the thick foliage of the canyon slope. She and Otto Halder—a different Otto Halder in those days—had once traveled this road to a picnic. Clemanline's mention of Coon creek brought back those memories in a torturing rush.

Agatha stood up and clutched the screen beside Clemanline. Yes, she was right. It was the old, familiar country. The early morning sun had not yet penetrated down here. Dew stood on the leaves of the thimble berries. Wisps of fog clung to the deeper places of the wood.

They met no other vehicle. It seemed impossible two cars could have passed if they did meet. Agatha held her breath at each curve, because the driver did not use his horn.

The grade flattened as they neared the canyon bottom. The truck slowed, then with a squeal of brakes and a sickening sideways slide in the deep dust, came to a halt beside a ruined barn.

"You're late," said a nasal voice from some source Agatha could not see through the narrow window. "Never mind that!" replied their driver irritably. "Help me tie up these dames and get them into that jalopy of yours. I want you to take this milk truck down the line and wreck it. It's hot!"

"I told you that trick of changing cars wouldn't work." The truck body recoiled as the driver leaped down into the swirling dust. "These dames oughta be gagged. Suppose they holler at someone going by?"

"No one will hear 'em in Dead Man's Gulch!" Agatha stepped back from the little window. The rust was choking. She heard sounds of men talking as they moved away from the truck. A bluejay called raucously. A chipmunk sent his short, sharp "cheep!" through the morning air.

"What are they doing?" Clemanline asked in a trembling voice. Agatha looked out again. The dust was settling. They're getting ropes out of an old car. It looks like a wreck. Rusty fenders and no top.

"I don't like this! They're going to take us to some hideout where we'll never be found! I'm going to try the door." Clemanline pushed against it—banged with her fists. "No use," Agatha told her. "I heard them lock it when they put us in."

"They're likely to search us." "You mustn't give them that radio tube!" "I don't intend to. And for goodness sake don't keep staring at my hat when they get us outside!" "It's likely to fall off."

"Maybe I'll get a chance to get rid of it before then—throw it into the brush or something, where we can find it later." "Hush! Here come the men!" A key scraped in the lock of the door. Half the rear panel opened. The same dark, heavy-set fellow, with no attempt at disguise, stood scowling at them. "Okeh! One at a time, and make it snappy!"

Agatha stepped down, her heart pounding. The door shut and locked behind her. "This is kidnapping," she told their driver and his tall companion, who had masked his face with a bandana. "You could hang for this!"

"Cut it out, sister. We're in a hurry!" The taller man grabbed her hands from behind and brought them together at her back. The other tied her wrists with rope. They both clutched her, one by each arm, and hustled her into the ancient vehicle standing beside the barn. "Remember," the tall one warned her, "if you holler at any farmer going by, we'll shoot him!"

"They hurried back to the truck for Clemanline." Agatha thought, "If only there were some way I could give a signal—something I could leave to show they're taking us up this side road!" She thought about dropping a handkerchief, but there was no way of getting it into her hands. She had nothing but her feet. That was it! A shoe! She stood up in the topless car. The men had left the door open. It was a simple matter to slip one shoe off by catching the heel with the toe of the other foot. A quick kick and the shoe went spinning out into the middle of the main road.

Clemanline was protesting loudly. "I'll remember your faces to my dying day! You'll go to prison for this!" "Lady," the tall man told her, "you'll never see my face—and you'll never see either of us again." "What do you mean by that? You—you're not going to k-kill us?" She was pale and trembling. They almost had to lift and push her in beside Agatha. "Okeh, Joe," directed the heavy-set man. "Take that truck somewhere in a hurry. I'll see you next month in—your know where."

"Right." The tall fellow started toward the milk truck on a quick trot. Suddenly he stopped and reached down into the dust. He picked up something and tossed it back at his mate who had climbed into the driver's seat of the old car. "Here, you keep this, Pete!" It was Agatha's shoe. (To Be Continued)

Sophisticated Print

DISTINGUISHED prints are coming along regularly from American designers; the stunt is to find one when you want one. Don't let anyone tell you our domestic prints can't compare with those from the old Paris. It just isn't so. Good advice is: Get the print you like the minute you see it. Don't mull it over and go back too late. The fact that a pattern is distinctive argues that it hasn't been produced in mass quantities.

"HOUR OF CHARM"
Paying musical tribute to our fighting allies, the Russians, Phil Spitalnik and the all-girl orchestra of the "Hour of Charm" present an all-Russian program, on Sunday, April 18, at 9 p. m., over W.L.W. Glier's "Russian Sailors' Dance," played by the orchestra, opens the program, which continues with "Song of the Volga Boatmen," by the all-girl choir; "Two Sparkling Eyes," by the soprano Vivien and the orchestra; "None But the Lonely Heart," sung by the contralto Maxine; "Dark Eyes," played by Violinist Evelyn; "Parade of the Wooden Soldiers," by the orchestra; "Russian Nightingale Song," sung by Vivien, and the hymn of the evening, Shostakovich's "Song of the United Nations," by the all-girl choir and dedicated to our allies.

EDWARD G. ROBINSON
The film gangster Edward G. Robinson plays a role unlike his screen work, when he portrays the New England blacksmith who invented the electric motor, on the "Radio Reader's Digest" on Sunday, April 18, at 8:30 p. m., over WBS. Though his invention has proved to be the basis of modern industry, the blacksmith never could market the motor, and died a pauper. Other program features include amusing and interesting facts about your I. Q., and a humorous story of the west. Conrad Nagel is host of the program, Don Bryan the music director.

"MAN BEHIND GUN"
"Flying Fort," the dramatized story of a U. S. Army Flying Fortress and its action in one of the war's longest daylight raids over Germany, will be heard on "The Man Behind the Gun" program, Sunday at 9:30 p. m. over the Columbia network. This will be the first of two stories based on "Stormy Weather," a flying fortress.

Against unbelievable odds, the flying fortress, "Stormy Weather" and its crew, went into battle over Hamm, Germany, target for the daylight raid. Everything disastrous that might happen to a flying fortress, happened to "Stormy Weather"—except failure to complete her bombing mission.

BRIEF RADIO NOTES
Those unintelligible syllables that emanate from the mouths of "Lum and Abner's" new Pine Ridge dentist, "Dr. Sam Snide," are given an "assist" by the upper dental plate of his portrayer, Eddie Holden! Eddie loosens it for the part.

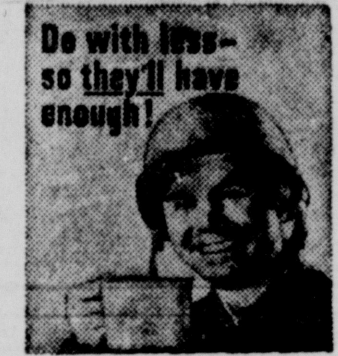

One of the favorite comedians of the girl musicians in the Phil Spi-

tainy "Hour of Charm" orchestra, heard Sunday night on NEC, is Red Skelton. So you couldn't blame them for getting somewhat excited this week when Phil told them that Red would be in the next picture they are making, "Mr. Co-Ed."

Not many radio writers also produce their own programs so when a radioite does so, and with two different shows, he deserves mention. He is Carlton E. Morse who writes and produces "I Love a Mystery" on CBS Mondays through Fridays and "One Man's Family" on NBC Sundays.

Wally Butterworth, who currently announces a quiz show, the Frank Crumit-Julia Sanderson programs over CBS Saturday nights at 7 p. m., has just won his own sponsored question-and-answer series, Wednesdays on MBS starting April 28 at 8:30 p. m. EWT.

Phi Beta Psi
Members of Phi Beta Psi sorority were delightfully entertained Tuesday by Miss Frances Hill at the home of Mrs. C. Dee Early, North Court street. During the business hour conducted by Miss Wilmina Phebus, sorority president, plans were discussed for the National Convention which will be June 22, 23 and 24 at the Netherlands Plaza, Cincinnati. A delegate to the conference will be announced later.

Various committee reports were received. Miss Peggy Parks and Miss Elizabeth Tolbert were named to select an Easter gift to be sent to Miss Ruth Andrews, a member of the sorority now in training with the WAVES.

Cards were the diversion of the informal social evening and light refreshments were served. Mrs. Frank Marion and Miss Jean Ferguson won prizes for scores.

The next session, April 27, will be at the home of Miss Phebus, on Watt street.

Farewell Party
Honoring Mrs. Robert Owens, her mother, Mrs. Loring Evans, and sister-in-law, Mrs. Emmett Evans, entertained a group of her friends Tuesday at an informal farewell party at the Evans home, East Main street. Mrs. Owens leaves Wednesday night for Fort Oglethorpe, Ga., to begin her training as a WAAC in the 3rd WAAC Training Center.

Present for the evening were the Misses Jane Paul, Marvyn Hennes, Eleanor Wiggins, Julia Jane Work, Gloria Dean, Betty Herkless, Regina Thornton, Rosemary Huffer, Barbara Caskey, Mrs. Ned Barnes and small son, Mrs. Jane Barthelmas and Mrs.

Circle 3
At the meeting of Circle 3 of the W. S. C. S. of the Methodist church held Tuesday at the home of Mrs. Francis Donohoe, 167 East Water street, Mrs. George H. Adkins gave a very interesting description of the Methodist Missionary work in North Africa, India and other countries that are reached by these missionaries. She discussed also activities of the Home Missionary department in the South.

Nine members responded to roll call and voted during the business hour to have a "Hat Party" for the May project. Mrs. O. C. King was in charge of the Scripture lesson taken from St. John 14 and the last chapter of Revelations. Mrs. King also conducted a Bible quiz which was very interesting.

The next meeting, May 11, will be at the home of Mrs. Adkins, 402 East Main street. Mrs. Florence

Sophisticated Print

DISTINGUISHED prints are coming along regularly from American designers; the stunt is to find one when you want one. Don't let anyone tell you our domestic prints can't compare with those from the old Paris. It just isn't so. Good advice is: Get the print you like the minute you see it. Don't mull it over and go back too late. The fact that a pattern is distinctive argues that it hasn't been produced in mass quantities.

The frock here sketched, with its interesting sweep of draping and high surplice bodice to the right, instead of the customary left, is a very good print indeed. The fabric is crepe, the print a lover's knotted ribbon made of black polka dots, and the background may be scarlet, navy or black.

Martha Walters. A beautiful gift was presented Mrs. Owens by the guest group.

After several rounds of cards, a round-robin letter to be read en route to camp by Mrs. Owens was written by her friends.

A dessert course, was served from a candlelight table in the dining room.

The next meeting will be May 11 at the home of Miss Anna Kirkwood, North Scioto street.

Jackson Senior Class Play

Miss Evelyn Zimmerman is directing the production of the play and Mrs. Ross Hamilton is in charge of the music festival.

"Hour of Charm"
Paying musical tribute to our fighting allies, the Russians, Phil Spitalny and the all-girl orchestra of the "Hour of Charm" present an all-Russian program, on Sunday, April 18, at 9 p. m., over WLW. Glier's "Russian Sailors' Dance," played by the orchestra, opens the program, which continues with "Song of the Volga Boatmen," by the all-girl choir; "Two Sparkling Eyes," by the soprano Vivien and the orchestra; "None But the Lonely Heart," sung by the contralto Maxine; "Dark Eyes," played by Violinist Evelyn; "Parade of the Wooden Soldiers," by the orchestra; "Russian Nightingale Song," sung by Vivien, and the hymn of the evening, Shostakovich's "Song of the United Nations," by the all-girl choir and dedicated to our allies.

EDWARD G. ROBINSON
The film gangster Edward G. Robinson plays a role unlike his screen work, when he portrays the New England blacksmith who invented the electric motor, on the "Radio Reader's Digest" on Sunday, April 18, at 8:30 p. m., over WBS. Though his invention has proved to be the basis of modern industry, the blacksmith never could market the motor, and died a pauper. Other program features include amusing and interesting facts about your I. Q., and a humorous story of the west. Conrad Nagel is host of the program, Don Bryan the music director.

"MAN BEHIND GUN"
"Flying Fort," the dramatized story of a U. S. Army Flying Fortress and its action in one of the war's longest daylight raids over Germany, will be heard on "The Man Behind the Gun" program, Sunday at 9:30 p. m. over the Columbia network. This will be the first of two stories based on "Stormy Weather," a flying fortress.

Against unbelievable odds, the flying fortress, "Stormy Weather" and its crew, went into battle over Hamm, Germany, target for the daylight raid. Everything disastrous that might happen to a flying fortress, happened to "Stormy Weather"—except failure to complete her bombing mission.

BRIEF RADIO NOTES

Those unintelligible syllables that emanate from the mouths of "Lum and Abner's" new Pine Ridge dentist, "Dr. Sam Slide," are given an "assist" by the upper dental plate of his portrayer, Eddie Holden! Eddie loosens it for the part.

One of the favorite comedians of the girl musicians in the Phil Spitalny tainly "Hour of Charm" orchestra, heard Sunday night on NBC, is Red Skelton. So you couldn't blame them for getting somewhat excited this week when Phil told them that Red would be in the next picture they are making, "Mr. Co-Ed."

Not many radio writers also produce their own programs so when a radioite does so, and with two different shows, he deserves mention. He is Carlton E. Morse who writes and produces "I Love a Mystery" on CBS Mondays through Fridays and "One Man's Family" on NBC Sundays.

Wally Butterworth, who currently announces a quiz show, the Frank Crumit-Julia Sanderson programs over CBS Saturday nights at 7 p. m., has just won his own sponsored question-and-answer series, Wednesdays on MBS starting April 28 at 8:30 p. m. EWT.

The rest-pause that refreshes
Welcome in peace... more welcome in war work
IN letter after letter from war plants and factories, managers write in to tell how important they consider Coca-Cola in providing energy-giving refreshment for workers... in helping output and morale. Of course, workers in war plants welcome a rest-pause... with ice-cold Coca-Cola to make it the pause that refreshes.
Ice-cold Coca-Cola quenches thirst. But it goes further to add pure, wholesome refreshment that you feel and enjoy. Made with a finished art, Coca-Cola has a taste all its own... a goodness you always welcome.
Popularity with war-workers has made Coca-Cola the symbol of the rest-pause. And remember only The Coca-Cola Company produces Coca-Cola.
Letters from plant managers from coast to coast emphasize that the little moment for an ice-cold Coca-Cola means a lot to workers in war plants. It's a refreshing moment on the sunny side of things... a way to turn to refreshment without turning from work.
A breathing spell, a rest-pause and ice-cold Coca-Cola. Contentment comes when you connect with a Coke.

DETROIT TIGERS MAY BE THREAT TO A. L. PENNANT

By Leo MacDonell
EVANSVILLE, Ind., April 14—

With a new manager in Steve O'Neill, a couple of outstanding recruits and a well balanced pitching staff, the Detroit Tigers expect to improve their position in the American league championship race this season, despite heavy loss of manpower to the services.

They were fifth last year, the second time only in nine years that they finished that low in the race. With more than 20 players gone to war, the Tigers were among the hardest hit in the big leagues. Not only were they well slashed in numbers but the losses included important key men like Catcher Birdie Tebbetts, Outfielder Barney McCosky, Pitcher Al Benton and Infielder Billy Hitchcock from the 1942 squad, not to mention Hank Greenberg, Pat Mullin and other stars who joined up earlier.

An astute baseball man who was once manager of Cleveland as well as being an outstanding catcher for that club for many years, O'Neill believes that with the clubs leveled off by military calls, the Tigers not only will bounce back into the first division but they may give the Yankees a run for the top spot. The new Tiger pilot holds that New York is the team to beat.

The recruits, on whom the Tigers depend for needed additional hitting power as well as replacements for gaping holes afield, are Joe Hoover and Dick Wakefield. Hoover, the only shortstop in the Detroit squad, was purchased from Hollywood of the Pacific coast league, where he fashioned a respectable .329 batting average last season.

Wakefield is the 21-year-old outfielder from University of Michigan to whom Walter O. Briggs paid a bonus of $52,000 for signing.

With his terrific slugging, Wakefield broke down fences with Beaumont in the Texas league last year and O'Neill is confident the strapping young man—6 foot 3 inches and 200 pounds—will hit big league hurling.

CLEVELAND PUGS GRAB TOP HONORS IN A. A. U.
BOSTON, April 14—Cleveland fighters today held top honors in the 55th national A. A. U. boxing championships which were concluded here last night. Three fighters from the Ohio city captured championships while the other titles went to boxers from Boston, Philadelphia, and Chicago. The U. S. army copped two of the championships.

PHILADELPHIA, April 14—Here's a tip for any woman who may show up at the Broadwood tonight when the Golden Terror grapples with the French Angel. Beware!

The Angel won the last encounter when a woman grabbed the Terror and prevented him from re-entering the ring.

"But it ain't going to happen no more," the Terror promised today. "I come from Tennessee and he don't kick no women in the kisser, but if some dame grabs me tonight, I'm gonna let go with a foot that'll jar 'em loose from their senses."

"If I kick before I look I won't know that it's a woman and in our code that's all right."

Here's News From Big League Training Camps

NEW YORK, April 14—The Flatbush "bums" and the Ottmen were back in their home grounds today after showing Camp Upton how the Brooks could take the boys from the Polo grounds 3 to 1.

The game was far from being sensational, only 11 hits being made by both sides; five by the Giants and six by Durocher's wartime nine. An error by Arkie Vaughan on a possible double play in the third cheated the Dodgers out of a possible shut-out.

NEW YORK—The pennant-winning Yankees were crestfallen today following their 7 to 5 defeat at the hands of the Boston Braves. Despite the fact that the Bronxies scored 15 hits, including a homer and four doubles, they bowed to the Braves after Johnny McCarthy smacked a fence-buster in the seventh inning with two men on.

BOSTON—Brother against brother. That's the way the Boston Red Sox felt today after losing two pitchers to Boston college only to slap them down in a lopsided game, 17 to 2. At the receiving end of the lambasting were Sox pitchers Yank Terry and Norman Brown, who were hit by their team mates almost at will.

FRENCH LICK, Ind.—Beaten 6 to 4 by the Detroit Tigers in a five inning benefit game for George Field soldiers at Vincennes, Ind., the Chicago Cubs settled down to routine practice today preparatory to breaking camp. Four Cub pitchers, Claude Passeau, Paul Derringer, Hi Bithorn and Ed Hanyzewski, yielded 11 hits at Vincennes yesterday while Hal Newhouse and Frank Overmire held the Bruins to seven blows. Doc Cramer got a homer for the Tigers, and Dom Dallessandro hit another for the Cubs.

RICHMOND, Ind.—Their exhibition game at Richmond cancelled, the Cincinnati Reds and the Cleveland Indians moved on to Springfield, O., for another engagement today. Jim Bagby will hurl for the Indians while Clyde Shoun was slated for mound duty with the Reds.

BIG CROWD TO SEE TWO BALL CONTESTS TODAY
NEW YORK, April 14—The biggest crowd to sit in an exhibition baseball here in years is expected to pile into Yankee stadium today to watch the Yankees, Dodgers and Giants tangle in a double-header for the Civilian Defense fund.

The opener of these games, which will establish the Springtime Major League champions, will bring together the Yanks against the Dodgers. The Giants will rest through the first half of the twin bill, then take on the winner of the first game.

Spud Chandler has been selected by Manager Joe McCarthy of the Yankees to hurl in the opening game, with Max Macon taking to the mound for the Dodgers. Five hundred WAVES, singing the Star Spangled Banner as they march, will provide color for the program, which also includes Mayor LaGuardia throwing out the first ball and Al Schacht, the baseball clown.

Although seats have been on sale for several days, there will be 50,000 in unreserved sections. In the event of a weather postponement, the double-header will be played Friday.

KICK, DON'T LOOK, THEN ALL O. K., SAYS GRUNTER
PHILADELPHIA, April 14—Here's a tip for any woman who may show up at the Broadwood tonight when the Golden Terror grapples with the French Angel. Beware!

The Angel won the last encounter when a woman grabbed the Terror and prevented him from re-entering the ring.

"But it ain't going to happen no more," the Terror promised today. "I come from Tennessee and he don't kick no women in the kisser, but if some dame grabs me tonight, I'm gonna let go with a foot that'll jar 'em loose from their senses."

"If I kick before I look I won't know that it's a woman and in our code that's all right."

WILMINGTON, Del., April 14—Connie Mack today added Darvell E. "Cy" Blanton and John Burrows to the Athletics' mound staff after dropping another exhibition game to Toronto, 7-0. During the game Eddie Mayo, sparkling third baseman, was cut over the left eye by a throw from Bob Swift. It is expected he will re-appear in the lineup in time for the season opener in Washington Tuesday.

THE LEAGUE VOTED TO PRESENT A $1,000 war bond to Umpire George Johnson, who is retiring after 29 years services in the A. A. Also adopted was a rule requiring teams to reach the 20-player limit by May 29 instead of May 12 as of last season.

COUNT FLEET'S DERBY RATING GOES SKY HIGH

Hertz-Owned Horse Easy Winner Over Fast Field At Jamaica Oval

SHORT ODDS ASSURED

Classic Entry Goes Wide On First Turn, But Gains Top Place Early

By John Cashman

NEW YORK, April 14—The owners of four Kentucky Derby candidates, after watching their beasts trail behind Count Fleet at Jamaica yesterday, should, if they expect to send their horses to the derby post, ask that Count Fleet run sideways with seven jockeys on his back in order to make it a fair contest.

The odds on Count Fleet in the $3,000 St. James yesterday were 3 to 20. It is true that he scored a smashing victory, roaring in to win 3 1/2 lengths ahead of Bousset after being forced extremely wide at the first turn, but the victory is even more impressive when it is considered that the Count paid less to win than the lowly Towser paid to show.

Strung out behind the Count were the derby hopefuls of yesterday—Four Freedoms, Famous Victory, Eurasian and Eye for Eye in that order. All of them carried 113 pounds against the Count's 122 except Four Freedoms, which packed 108. Had these animals carried feathers and Count Fleet a knapsack filled with rocks, the result would have been the same, so hard were those victorious hooves flying through the mud.

Price To Go Lower
With every report on the Count's training runs, the odds in the derby Winter book seem to drop lower and lower. The odds 7 to 5 at which he was priced prior to yesterday's race are fantastic, and his victory at Jamaica will drive the price down another peg. If he wins the Wood Memorial next Saturday, most of the Kentucky Derby wagering will center around which horse will come in second, and the Count will be forgotten.

Jockey Johnny Longden was reported to be restraining the Count once he started to pull safely away from the field. Still, the Count turned in the time of 1:42-4/5 for a mile and seventy yards. The proud son of Reigh Count, winner of the 1928 derby, has, through performances like this, made himself the smash hit of American turf.

However, the only person who will ever get rich quick on Count Fleet is, apparently, Mrs. J. D. Hertz, who owns that noble steed. In the Jamaica feature, Count Fleet returned only $2.30, $2.20 and $2.10, Bousset paid $2.70 and $2.40 and Towser $3.

NEW BONUS IDEA PUT IN EFFECT IN A S S O C I A T I O N
INDIANAPOLIS, April 14—A new bonus system for players of the American Association was announced by President George Trautman today as the baseball league concluded its annual Spring business meeting at Indianapolis.

The new arrangement, Trautman said, substitutes for the $12,000 players' pool previously in effect, a setup whereby the pool will receive 1 cent for each admission in excess of 40 cents.

Trautman pointed out that the league attendance has been over 1,200,000 for the last several years and once reached 1,460,000. Half the players' pool is to be divided on a 60-40 basis by the winners and runners-up in the pennant race and the other half between the winners and runners-up in the Governors' playoff series to determine the league representative in the Little World Series.

The league voted to present a $1,000 war bond to Umpire George Johnson, who is retiring after 29 years services in the A. A. Also adopted was a rule requiring teams to reach the 20-player limit by May 29 instead of May 12 as of last season.

GREGORY RICE TO RUN IN PENN RELAY TEST
PHILADELPHIA, April 14—Gregory Rice, greatest distance runner in American sports annals, will make his first 1943 outdoor appearance in the 49th annual University of Pennsylvania relay carnival at Franklin field April 24. It was announced today. Among his opponents in a two-mile event will be Glenn Masten, of Colgate, ICAA indoor two-mile champ. Rice, who has chalked up a string of 64 consecutive victories, will represent the New York A. C.

ST. LOUIS—Forced to cancel their Spring bout yesterday because of the weather, the St. Louis Cardinals and Browns today were scheduled to play their third game of the Spring series at Sportsman's park in St. Louis. The two teams passed up workouts yesterday for the first time since they set up Spring training.

WILMINGTON, Del., April 14—Connie Mack today added Darvell E. "Cy" Blanton and John Burrows to the Athletics' mound staff after dropping another exhibition game to Toronto, 7-0. During the game Eddie Mayo, sparkling third baseman, was cut over the left eye by a throw from Bob Swift. It is expected he will re-appear in the lineup in time for the season opener in Washington Tuesday.

GOTHAM BOXING FANS LIKE ANY KIND OF FIGHT

By Lawton Carver
NEW YORK, April 14—"Reading about Tony Galento planning a comeback gets you to thinking," the fellow across the table said ordering another beaker of luke warm milk. "It makes you wonder what kind of crowds they could draw right now if Galento could win a couple of team-up fights en route to a match with Max Baer, Lou Nova, Buddy Baer, Tommy Farr—or some others like that as they used to be."

"Considering the crowds that second rate little men are drawing these days for their unimportant and sometimes unimpressive performances there is no telling what a real good heavyweight fight would do at the box office," the fellow went on.

"Take that Galento. He is going to make a quick pass at any loose dough he can find and probably will wind-up sooner or later in the top spot at Madison Square garden or some other such important arena. He can't fight a lick, and never could, and neither can anybody that they might dig up for him, yet they—he and some other clown—will draw more dough than a good fight in normal times," the fellow went on ordering another glass of luke warm milk.

And that's about the size of it, as the fellow was saying. Any kind of a fight—or any kind of a sports event—will draw money today. All you have to do is let the time and the site be known publicly.

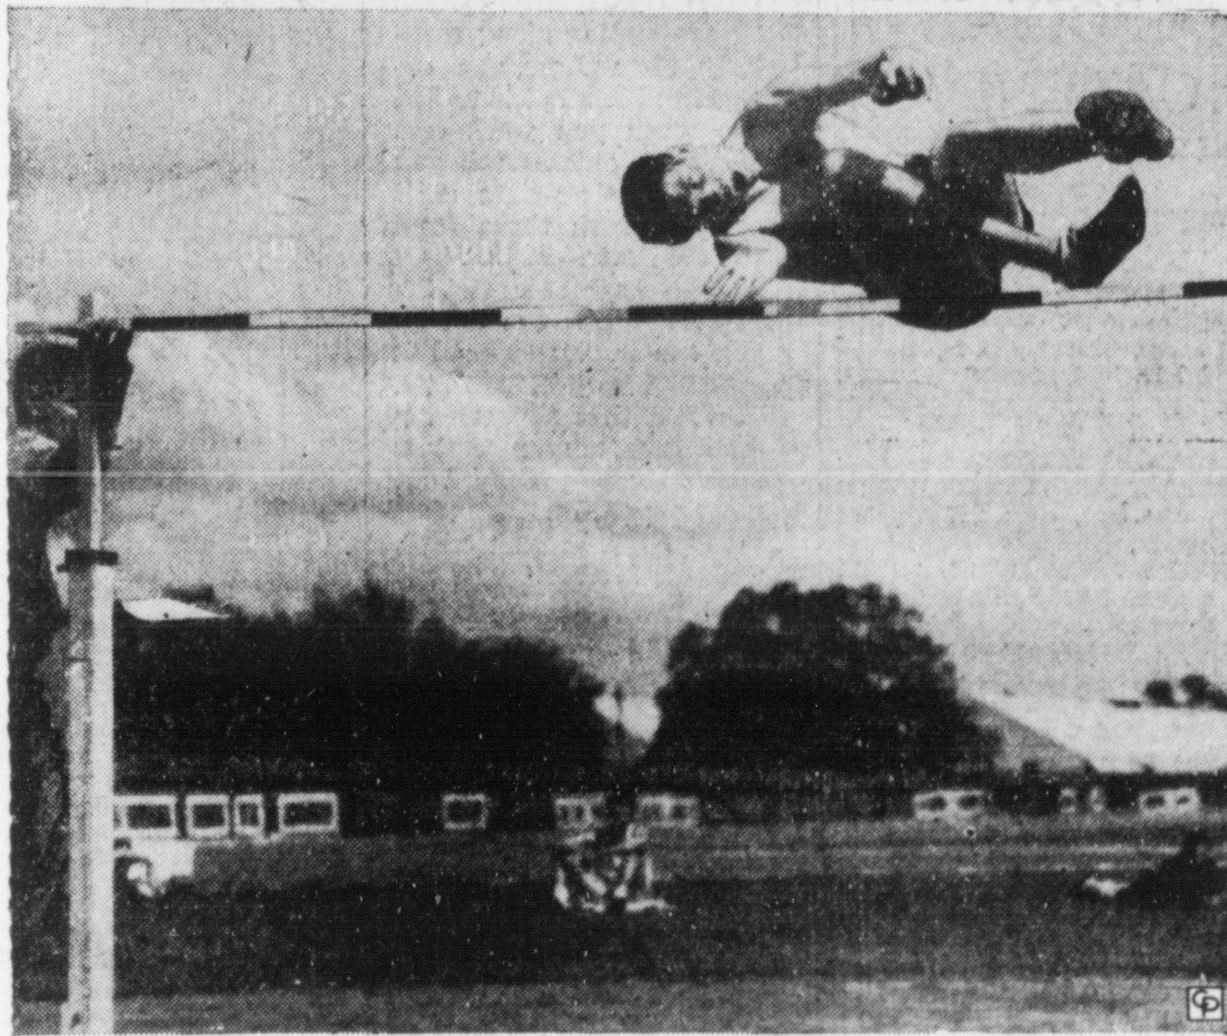

That makes it both Godsend to promoters and a nightmare. As promoters they welcome such a fortune situation as this in which people will flock to any kind of an attraction, but they deplore at the same time the scarcity of talent.

SIX GIRLS SIGNED
CHICAGO, April 14—Six outstanding girl softball players have signed contracts with the all-American Girls' softball league. DETROIT TIGERS MAY BE THREAT TO A. L. PENNANT

By Leo MacDonell

EVANSVILLE, Ind., April 14—With a new manager in Steve O'Neill, a couple of outstanding recruits and a well balanced pitching staff, the Detroit Tigers expect to improve their position in the American league championship race this season, despite heavy loss of manpower to the services.

They were fifth last year, the second time only in nine years that they finished that low in the race. With more than 20 players gone to war, the Tigers were among the hardest hit in the big leagues. Not only were they well slashed in numbers but the losses included important key men like Catcher Birdie Tebbetts, Outfielder Barney McCosky, Pitcher Al Benton and Infielder Billy Hitchcock from the 1942 squad, not to mention Hank Greenberg, Pat Mullin and other stars who joined up earlier.

An astute baseball man who was once manager of Cleveland as well as being an outstanding catcher for that club for many years, O'Neill believes that with the clubs leveled off by military calls, the Tigers not only will bounce back into the first division but they may give the Yankees a run for the top spot. The new Tiger pilot holds that New York is the team to beat.

The recruits, on whom the Tigers depend for needed additional hitting power as well as replacements for gaping holes, are Joe Hoover and Dick Wakefield. Hoover, the only shortstop in the Detroit squad, was purchased from Hollywood of the Pacific coast league, where he fashioned a respectable .329 batting average last season.

Wakefield is the 21-year-old outfielder from University of Michigan to whom Walter O. Briggs paid a bonus of $52,000 for signing. With his terrific slugging, Wakefield broke down fences with Beaumont in the Texas league last year and O'Neill is confident the strapping young man—6 foot 3 inches and 200 pounds—will hit big league hurling.

Trautman pointed out that the league attendance has been over 1,200,000 for the last several years and once reached 1,400,000. Half the players' pool is to be divided on a 60-40 basis by the winners and runners-up in the pennant race and the other half between the winners and runners-up in the Governors' playoff series to determine the league representative in the Little World Series.

The league voted to present a $1,000 war bond to Umpire George Johnson, who is retiring after 29 years services in the A. A. Also adopted was a rule requiring teams to reach the 20-player limit by May 29 instead of May 12 as of last season.

During the game Eddie Mayo, sparkling third baseman, was cut over the left eye by a throw from Bob Swift. It is expected he will re-appear in the lineup in time for the season opener in Washington Tuesday.

Price Ceiling Panel To Be Formed By Ration Board

IMPORTANT UNIT TO CARRY OUT ORDERS OF OPA

Selection Of Successor For J. O. Eagleson Postponed

PROCESSING EXPEDITED

Mileage Group To Hold Petition Sessions Three Times Each Week

Pickaway county War Price and Rationing board Tuesday night expanded the important rationing panel from six members to nine in an effort to speed up processing of applications, set the stage for appointment of a price ceiling board which promises to be the most important to be operated under OPA regulations, hired a new clerk and postponed employment of a new chief clerk to succeed J. O. Eagleson, resigned.

Additions to the mileage panel include Norbert L. Cochran, Karl Mason and A. V. Osborn, all three of the men agreeing to serve. They will join with Paul A. Johnson, Eldred A. Cayce, Russell Rogers, Herman Hill, E. C. Rector and L. E. Foreman in comprising the mileage panel. Mr. Johnson was elected as chairman of the expanded panel.

Three Meetings Weekly

Under the program set up by OPA for operation of the panel three of the members of the group will meet once each week, so that three meetings are held. In this manner OPA believes 48 hour service can be provided on applications for gasoline, tires, bicycles and automobiles.

Although definite information has not yet been received concerning the new price ceiling panel, the local board named a committee of three, including Chairman George D. McDowell, Herman Hill and J. Donald Mason, to contact men suggested for places on the panel. In addition to three members of the panel, the new unit will also include six businessmen who will serve in advisory capacities.

Important Panel

The work this panel will be asked to handle will be important, OPA has hinted, local rationers being told that all prices now come under ceiling regulations.

Frank Turner, who has been serving on the fuel oil panel, was transferred Tuesday evening to the food panel at the request of Mr. Mason, food panel chairman.

Miss Helen Straley, 19, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Straley, 133 Logan street, was appointed as a board clerk to succeed Mrs. John McGinnis, who has resigned effective April 15. Miss Straley, a native of Derby and graduate of Williamsport high school in the class of 1940, attended Office Training school, Columbus, and has held positions in several Columbus offices. She was to start training Wednesday with Mrs. McGinnis for the new job. Mrs. McGinnis plans to leave soon for the Panama Canal Zone to join Mr. McGinnis, who is a member of the Zone's police force.

Miss Straley was chosen from a list of 24 applicants for the clerk's position.

Question of a successor to Mr. Eagleson, who leaves Thursday, was discussed at length, but no decision was made. The board plans to have Mrs. Frances Marion, senior clerk, serve temporarily as chief clerk until a successor can be named. Mrs. Marion has a big job to do as food panel clerk, but has agreed to help as chief clerk until the new executive can be chosen.

TAYLOR FUNERAL

Funeral services will be conducted Thursday at 1 p. m. for Mrs. Edna Streich Taylor, wife of John F. Taylor, who died Tuesday night in Chillicothe. Mrs. Taylor was a cousin of E. C. Ebert and Miss Mary Ebert and was also a relative of Miss Mattie Ebert and Mrs. Charles Walters of Circleville.

FARMERS MUST GET COUPONS ON FOOD SALES

Farmers of Pickaway county were instructed Wednesday by the Pickaway county War Price and Rationing Board to collect ration coupons whenever they sell butter, lard, or any other food rationed under the meats and fats program.

OPA said that all farm sales whether to consumers or to retailers must be made at current point values.

The stamps farmers collect are to be turned into ration boards with a report on a form that will be available after April 25.

Housewives this week will use red "C" coupons in buying meat, edible fats, and oils and hard cheese, with any "A" or "B" coupons they have left. Fewer points will be needed for purchases of certain sausage products and pork cuts, the OPA having reduced their point values because they were moving slowly through stores. The reduced items include wieners, bologna, pork sausage, scrapple, and pork neck and backbones.

Farmers Urged To Play Leading Roles in Big Campaign for War Loans

Pickaway county farmers are being urged by officials of the Second War Loan drive and by agriculture organizations to take a leading role in the drive to raise $1,611,000 for the treasury's great $13,000,000,000 quota.

Members of the rural economics department at Ohio State university in a communication sent to F. K. Blair, Pickaway county extension agent, advises farmers to buy bonds according to their individual circumstances, but at the same time declared that Series E bonds are ideally adapted for investment of farm money that will be needed for working capital after the war is over. The bonds have guaranteed values and always can be sold for the amount paid for them plus interest, when they have been held for a year.

These bonds, the department said, are issued in convenient denominations, so small or large amounts can be bought, and the E bonds can be cashed in either large or small amounts as the need arises.

Farm prices nowadays measure not only normal operating costs and labor income but also the gradual wearing out of equipment and buildings which cannot be replaced or repaired as would be done if rationing regulations were not in effect. More than the normal amount of annual working capital will be needed by farmers when it becomes possible to replace tools and to construct or repair buildings.

This future need means that a fair portion of current income should be invested in war bonds that are earmarked for specific uses after the war. All types of government bonds offer security for investments and will be marketable when the need arises for the money now invested in them.

The securities to be offered under the Second War Loan will be issued in denominations of $500 or larger. These bonds bear interest and can be sold at market value the amount is not guaranteed. The price which will be received for them will be determined by the relation between the number sold then and the demand for them at the time the sale is made.

The bonds of larger denomination are excellent for persons who have large sums of money to invest and who will not need to cash the bonds to procure operating capital after the war is over. These bonds are negotiable and can be used as loan collateral, the same as Liberty bonds in World War I.

War bonds must be sold to assure victory. The only ways to finance wars are by taxes, borrowing money, or pillage. Bond sales permit the expense to be spread dering Gates transferred to a service unit—which means no combat service throughout the war.

No explanation was given. Two lieutenant colonels thought so much of Gates that they intervened. But nothing happened. There was only mysterious silence in Washington.

Finally Gates sent a letter to President Roosevelt. "There is no greater honor," he wrote, "than to fight for one's country. Am I so base that I should be denied that right? What better way to prove one's loyalty than on the field of battle?"

"I am supremely confident that if a Board of Officers were to review the case, or a Special Investigating Officer appointed, the recommendation would be to return to my former unit. Our men are fighting gloriously in Africa and the Pacific. I only ask to take my place alongside of them."

But the letter got no further than the War Department. No Board of Review was appointed. Apparently Sergeant Gates had committed the unforgivable crime of fighting for Loyalist Spain.

This is only one of many, many cases. George Cook, a lieutenant in the Lincoln Brigade, entered the Ft. Benning, Ga., officers training school, 23rd Company, last December. All his mail was opened and read. He attained a high standing in his class, but suddenly in the eighth week of training, he was yanked out and transferred to the Medical Department along with over-age men. No explanation was given and no board of review granted.

"SOME UNSEEN HAND"

Another case is that of Sergeant Irving Fajans, also in the Ft. Benning Officers Training school, 29th company. He had been wounded in action in Spain, attained high marks in officers' school, had been permitted to buy his uniform and make all preparations for receiving a commission.

But one day before graduation, he was suddenly told he could not graduate and was transferred to the 4th Service Command, Atlanta, where he will work out the war.

Again take the case of Private Alvin Warren, who after three months basic training at Ft. Knox, was asked by his company commander to remain as cadre training personnel. He had fought in Spain for a year and a half and his experience was considered valuable by his immediate superiors.

Then suddenly he was transferred to Ft. Benjamin Harrison, Ind., to a company of limited service men including Italians, German aliens, and others not allowed to enter combat units.

Then there is the case of Morris Brier, who entered officers training school at Camp Croft, 17th Company, was rated second in his class, but on March 23, three days before graduation, after purchasing his officer's uniform, was told for some mysterious and unexplained reason that he could not graduate. He was transferred to a headquarters station complement.

These are only a few of many cases where some unseen hand, similar to the influences found in both the State and War Departments in the past, have reached in to penalize the youngsters who were far-sighted enough to see what was going on in Spain and to risk their lives to stop it.

Meanwhile the War Department has commissioned as a major Harry Brown, of York, Pa., even while he was indicted for tax frauds (later convicted); and also commissioned as lieutenant-colonel Freeman Burford, of Dallas, Tex., previously indicted on a charge of conspiring "to defraud the United States" and paying $148,000 in one-dollar bills to Seymour Weiss and ex-Gov. Leche of Louisiana. Leche and Weiss pleaded guilty, were imprisoned, but Burford managed to block extradition from Texas to Louisiana, and now has been rewarded with a lieutenant-colonelcy in the U. S. Army, while youngsters who fought the battle of Spain remain private.

SMITH CONVICTED

Allen B. Smith, Mingo street, was sent to the county jail Tuesday afternoon by Judge Lemuel Weldon on charges of failing to provide for two minor children. Smith, against whom charges were filed by his wife, Gracie, was fined $100 and costs, $50 of which was suspended, and was sentenced to serve 30 days in jail.

COURT UPHOLDS O. I. C. IN WIDOW'S APPEAL

Judge Meeker Terwilliger in a decision announced Wednesday ruled in favor of the Ohio Industrial Commission in the appeal brought by Mrs. Mary Ellen Cook of Circleville in the death of her husband, Emmett C. Cook, July 23, 1938.

Mrs. Cook brought action against the commission, claiming the right to participate in insurance funds. Her husband was killed ed by lightning on an H. M. Crites farm in Circleville township, the bolt striking a barn in which he had sought refuge. Mrs. Cook's petition held that Mr. Cook was employed by Mr. Crites, but the court decided he was working for Allen Good instead.

JESTER SENT TO JAIL; ADMITS MANSLAUGHTER

Schuyler Jester of near New Holland was sentenced to 60 days in the county jail and was fined the costs of the case Tuesday when he appeared before Judge Howard Goldsberry in Ross county common pleas court on a charge of manslaughter. Jester admitted the indictment.

In addition to the 60-day term, Judge Goldsberry added 20 more days and costs for leaving the scene of an accident. Jester was indicted after Rufus F. Hackney of Clarksburg was fatally injured in a collision of his car with the truck driven by Jester on Route 277 near Clarksburg on February 2. Jester was driving a truck belonging to his employer, the vehicle being operated without knowledge of the owner, the court was told.

The manslaughter case was the last one handled by Prosecutor Lester Reid of Chillicothe until victory, the prosecutor leaving Wednesday for army service. William J. Jones, Chillicothe attorney and former Vinton county common pleas judge, has been named to serve as prosecutor while Reid is away or until the end of the present term.

TOOTLE SENTENCED

Edward Tootle, of Jackson township, was sentenced to serve 30 days in Madison county jail Wednesday when he pleaded guilty of a petit larceny indictment. Tootle was arrested several months ago in Circleville at the request of Madison county authorities.

The WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

By DREW PEARSON

dering Gates transferred to a service unit—which means no combat service throughout the war.

No explanation was given. Two lieutenant colonels thought so much of Gates that they intervened. But nothing happened. There was only mysterious silence in Washington.

Finally Gates sent a letter to President Roosevelt. "There is no greater honor," he wrote, "than to fight for one's country. Am I so base that I should be denied that right? What better way to prove one's loyalty than on the field of battle?"

"I am supremely confident that if a Board of Officers were to review the case, or a Special Investigating Officer appointed, the recommendation would be to return to my former unit. Our men are fighting gloriously in Africa and the Pacific. I only ask to take my place alongside of them."

But the letter got no further than the War Department. No Board of Review was appointed. Apparently Sergeant Gates had committed the unforgivable crime of fighting for Loyalist Spain.

This is only one of many, many cases. George Cook, a lieutenant in the Lincoln Brigade, entered the Ft. Benning, Ga., officers training school, 23rd Company, last December. All his mail was opened and read. He attained a high standing in his class, but suddenly in the eighth week of training, he was yanked out and transferred to the Medical Department along with over-age men. No explanation was given and no board of review granted.

"SOME UNSEEN HAND"

Another case is that of Sergeant Irving Fajans, also in the Ft. Benning Officers Training school, 29th company. He had been wounded in action in Spain, attained high marks in officers' school, had been permitted to buy his uniform and make all preparations for receiving a commission.

But one day before graduation, he was suddenly told he could not graduate and was transferred to the 4th Service Command, Atlanta, where he will work out the war.

Again take the case of Private Alvin Warren, who after three months basic training at Ft. Knox, was asked by his company commander to remain as cadre training personnel. He had fought in Spain for a year and a half and his experience was considered valuable by his immediate superiors.

Then suddenly he was transferred to Ft. Benjamin Harrison, Ind., to a company of limited service men including Italians, German aliens, and others not allowed to enter combat units.

Then there is the case of Morris Brier, who entered officers training school at Camp Croft, 17th Company, was rated second in his class, but on March 23, three days before graduation, after purchasing his officer's uniform, was told for some mysterious and unexplained reason that he could not graduate. He was transferred to a headquarters station complement.

These are only a few of many cases where some unseen hand, similar to the influences found in both the State and War Departments in the past, have reached in to penalize the youngsters who were far-sighted enough to see what was going on in Spain and to risk their lives to stop it.

Meanwhile the War Department has commissioned as a major Harry Brown, of York, Pa., even while he was indicted for tax frauds (later convicted); and also commissioned as lieutenant-colonel Freeman Burford, of Dallas, Tex., previously indicted on a charge of conspiring "to defraud the United States" and paying $148,000 in one-dollar bills to Seymour Weiss and ex-Gov. Leche of Louisiana. Leche and Weiss pleaded guilty, were imprisoned, but Burford managed to block extradition from Texas to Louisiana, and now has been rewarded with a lieutenant-colonelcy in the U. S. Army, while youngsters who fought the battle of Spain remain privates.

SMITH CONVICTED

Allen B. Smith, Mingo street, was sent to the county jail Tuesday afternoon by Judge Lemuel Weldon on charges of failing to provide for two minor children. Smith, against whom charges were filed by his wife, Gracie, was fined $100 and costs, $50 of which was suspended, and was sentenced to serve 30 days in jail.

COURT UPHOLDS O. I. C. IN WIDOW'S APPEAL

Judge Meeker Terwilliger in a decision announced Wednesday ruled in favor of the Ohio Industrial Commission in the appeal brought by Mrs. Mary Ellen Cook of Circleville in the death of her husband, Emmett C. Cook, July 23, 1938.

Mrs. Cook brought action against the commission, claiming the right to participate in insurance funds. Her husband was killed by lightning on an H. M. Crites farm in Circleville township, the bolt striking a barn in which he had sought refuge. Mrs. Cook's petition held that Mr. Cook was employed by Mr. Crites, but the court decided he was working for Allen Good instead.
